Mayor Weed's First Veto Received.

M. U. Robbins' License Disapproved—Police Authorized to Supervise Licensed Druggists.

The board met at 7:45 p. m. last Monday evening.

Present, President Saltonstall, Aldermen Baker, Barber, Bishop, Brown, Cabot, Carter, Day, Deming, Ellis, Ensign, Hunt, Johnson, Mellen, Palmer, Sweeney, Weston and White.

HEARINGS.

Upon taking land for sewer in Emerald street.

Thomas L. Williams. It is simply a matter of dollars and cents with me as I cannot afford the expense of the sewer. There is no complaint from residents on the street and the board of health should say why they wish the sewer put in. I have lived on the street for 10 years and putting the sewer through now would cripple me.

Michael Welch. I am not ready to have the sewer put it now. When the matter was up before we tried to have the street accepted and found it would cost us $33 for a drain, and the matter was dropped.

Simon A. White. Unfortunately I have land on three streets and have not yet finished paying assessments on Clinton st. I have 184 feet on Hawthorne st and 95 feet on Emerald st. and have lived there 26 years. The sewer will cost so much that if it is put in I will have to dispose of some of my property. No one on the street has applied for the sewer.

The hearing was closed.

Upon taking land for sewer in Hawthorne street.

Charles M. Bryson. I want the sewer very much and from the number of cesspools in that vicinity I believe it is needed very much.

The clerk read a letter in remonstrance from Miss Annie Crowle for estate of Patrick Crowle and the hearing was closed.

Upon taking land for sewer in Foster Place.

H. E. Duncan. After describing conditions said he desired action on the sewer matter postponed until the advisability of laying out the street under the betterment act could be considered.

W. S. Higgins agreed with Mr. Duncan.

A. Wentworth. I do not need the sewer but the street ought to be widened and made a public street and if it is done I am willing to pay for the sewer.

Charles A. Washburn. The surface water from Foster street is a nuisance and ought to be taken care of.

Charles B. Somers. I live at the wide end of the street and am very much in favor of the sewer. The matter of widening does not interest me and I signed the petition with the understanding that it should cost me nothing.

Wallace C. Boyden. I have already been compelled by the board of health to enter the sewer in Walnut st, although everything is in the best of condition, in a sanitary way. In the matter of accepting the street, the plan proposed will take 780 feet of land from me and endanger several fine trees, which, if taken down will depreciate my property. I am willing to consider any proposition which will save the trees but shall protest against their removal.

The street is not a long one and the travel is not serious. While the sidewalk is in bad condition, it is the duty of the abutters on the street to keep it in condition and it can be done at a slight expense. I do not wish to stand in the way of any improvement of our city of which we are all so proud, but I notice that we have to pay generously for our pride in this direction.

J. W. Allen. The cesspools in this vicinity are all good and have not needed cleaning for years. There is no call for the sewer.

The hearing was closed.

Upon change of grade of Broadway.

J. J. Cranitch. The new grade of the street is perfectly satisfactory and will meet all the requirements of the street. I am authorized to speak for all the other persons interested in this matter.

The hearing was closed.

The proclamation of Gov. John I. Bates appointing April 30 as Arbor Day was placed on file.

Y. M. C. A.

Next Sunday May 8th will be observed as Y. M. C. A. Sunday in the Newton churches. A meeting for young men will be held in the Association hall which will be addressed by the president of the Association, Mr. S. M. Sayford. A large number of men are expected to attend this meeting.

The Boys' Chess Club of the Newton Association played the Mens' Chess Club of Hyde Park and defeated them by a score of 5 to 3. Those representing the Newton Club were Robert Ringrose, Earl Field, Ralph Mosher, Robert Gilfeather and William Graham. Mr. Dyer leader of the club accompanied the boys on this trip. A return match is to be played in the near future.

The annual meeting of the Newton Association was called to order by President Sayford at 7:45 Wednesday evening. A report of the year's work was read by the general secretary. This report showed a growth in every department of the association work. This fine showing has been made possible because of the very efficient volunteer force of young men who have given so much time and service to the association. Following are some figures given in the report. Total membership May 1, 1904, 370, a gain of 85 over last year. The average daily attendance at the rooms from Oct. to May has been 80. Frequent socials and entertainments have been held with an average attendance of 60. Each Sunday afternoon from Nov. to May 1 meetings were held for young men. These meetings began with a small attendance but have been steadily increasing in numbers. A Bible class for young men with an enrollment of 15 meets each Sunday. A social tea is held afterwards. From Nov. to April 15 two boys' Bible classes have been held on Sunday afternoons. The association has conducted a mechanical drawing class. Mr. Hume of the Navy Yard is the teacher. The work of the physical department has been excellent. Mr. Wyatt the physical director conducted 3 classes per week for the boys and young men and two for the business men. The classes for boys and business men were especially successful. The relay team won from such teams as Boston Y. M. C. A. and Malden Y. M. C. A. and has never been defeated. A dual meet with Malden Y. M. C. A. resulted in a victory for Newton. A series of interesting contests have been held Saturday evenings among members of the Association. Basket Ball has proved a very popular game this year. 140 different persons used the gymnasium regularly. The large gymnasium and new running track have drawn in many who enjoy running and private exercise. The boys work this year as been done in clubs. That this plan is popular with the boys one only needs to mention that the membership in the boys department has increased from 55 to 93 since Nov. 1, 1903. The Glee, C. O. T. U. Success and Chess Club have a total enrollment of 70 boys. Anyone coming into the reception room would know that there was a Women's Auxiliary connected with the Newton Association. The fine upholstered seat in the reception room, the lace curtains and the furniture in the parlor are gifts of the ladies. For entertaining the older boys' conference and for other things too numerous to mention the Association is indebted to the Women's Auxiliary. The Association is out of debt, all bills are paid, and the outlook for next year's work is bright. Plans to enlarge the physical work of the Association are now being considered. A physical director who will give his whole time to the Association will be engaged. Other new features for next year will be made known later.

Coming Attractions

Holla Street Theatre—As virile and as thoroughly American as was the story of "The Pit" by Frank Norris, is the play made from the book for William A. Brady, in which Wilton Lackaye is to appear at the Holla Street Theatre, Boston, at the head of a company of three hundred people, beginning Monday, May 9th. Thoroughly American in every detail, a faithful picture of the great wheat market of the West and of American social customs and problems of today, the play makes an appeal, stronger perhaps than the dramatization of any romance that has yet been given to the stage.

In the role of Curtis Jadwin Wilton Lackaye who has appeared with distinction in so many parts—has found his greatest and best opportunity. Manager Brady has staged the play magnificently and has surrounded Mr. Lackaye with an extraordinary cast. It is claimed for the production that it is the largest ever seen on the stage, with the single exception of the passion play at Ober Ammergau. Critics of Chicago and New York declare that "The Pit" is the greatest American play since "The Henrietta," and the work of the dramatist, Channing Pollock, has been highly praised as preserving all the salient points in Frank Norris' great story, and presenting them in such a way as to fully sustain the dramatic illusion.

Grand Opera House—Manager Magee of the Boston Grand Opera House, announces the closing week of the season commencing next Monday and has secured for the attraction one that should truly close the season in a blaze of glory, for the big colored extravaganza organization known as "The Smart Set" is coming to play a return engagement and will be seen in the same elaborate musical extravaganza, "A Southern Enchantment," which these clever people presented early in the season. The great company of colored fun makers is headed by Ernest Hogan, the famous comic comedian, who was specially secured for the New York engagement and he will come to the Grand Opera House with his howlingly funny characterizations and a number of new songs of which he, himself is the author. The first three performances will be given for the benefit of the Grand Opera House employees and their hosts of friends are making deep inroads in the box office ticket racks for these performances. There will be a grand professional matinee on Thursday afternoon. The children should not miss seeing them on Saturday afternoon, the last matinee of the season.

Tremont Theatre—A musical fantasy of the forest called "Woodland," the latest and most elaborate work of Frank Pixley and Gustave Luder, the authors of "King Jodo," "The Prince of Pilsen" and "The Burgomaster," is now in its second week at the Tremont Theatre, Boston. "In Woodland" Mr. Savage has undoubtedly the most unique offering he has ever made. It might well be called "bird opera," as all of the characters represent birds. The leading comedian is Blue Jay, a trap politician; the prima donna, the Nightingale; the soubrette, Jenny Wren; the court physician, the Raven; the gossiping widow, the Parrot, and so on throughout the entire cast. There is a genuine plot which includes several delightful little love stories and Mr. Luder's reputation as a composer is well known. There are dozens of tuneful melodies to whistle and there are many who will be pleased to learn that Mr. Luder has written a number called "The Tale of a Turtle Dove," a companion piece to "The Tale of a Kangaroo," "The Tale of a Seashell" and "The Tale of a Bumblebee." Again has George Marion distinguished himself as a stage manager. The elaborate costumes representing many huge birds, were designed by Archie Gunn, and the dances were arranged by Sam Marion.

Keith's Theatre—The opening week of the summer season at Keith's has been such a pronounced success that the judgment of the management in starting the concerts of popular music by the Fadettes woman's orchestra much earlier than in past years has already been justified. Music lovers of Boston and New England enjoy the class of selections played by the popular orchestra, and never seem to tire of hearing them. Then, there has been no falling off in the high character of the vaudeville program, as is evidenced by the list of entertainers scheduled for the week of May 9, among them the following: Victor Moore and Emma Littlefield, in a comedy sketch; Poettinger's Swedish quintet of vocalists and dancers, one of the most pleasing organizations of the kind that has ever visited this country; Everhart, the great trick hoop roller; Al Bellman and Lottie Moore, in a comedy sketch, with vocal and dancing specialties; Coture and Gillett, comedy acrobats, and Myers and Rosa, novelty jugglers. The Fadettes concerts are scheduled to commence at 1:45 and 7:30 p. m. daily.

Globe Theatre—Mr. B. C. Whitney will present his blithesome extravaganza, "The Isle of Spice" at the Globe Theatre next Monday evening, May 9th. This beautiful, musical fantasy has had a most successful season, which included one hundred and fifty nights in Chicago. Mr. Whitney has made an entirely new scenic and costume production for the piece under the supervision of Mr. Gus Schille. "The Isle of Spice," unlike a great many extravaganzas, has a semblance of a plot, and it is sure to please the taste of the most blasé theatregoer. It is full of color, beautiful stage pictures, catchy songs, graceful dancing, and laughter. It is the very latest up-to-date thing in musical comedy, and besides it contains the unique radium ballet.

Boston Music Hall—At the Boston Music Hall, beginning next Monday, comes P. J. Kennedy's company in that popular play, "Yon Yonson," written by the late Gus Heege. It is truly remarkable what hold some plays have upon the theatre-going public. Each succeeding season witnesses the wreck of many pretensions dramatic productions on the shoals of financial failure, while other time-tried and popular attractions ride gracefully on the seas and waves of success. To attain the success and to continue so long in the good favor of the public an attraction must possess undoubted merit. The prestige of "Yon Yonson" and its claim to much originality lies, it is said, in the novelty it affords through its exposition of the comedy traits and peculiarities of the Americanized Scandinavian. The management promise that the production has been brought up-to-date in cost, in musical and specialty features and in scenic environment.

Majestic Theatre—One of the biggest musical comedy hits of the present theatrical season in Boston was the production of "Buster Brown," which was given at the Majestic Theatre during the weeks of January 25 and February 1 at the Majestic Theatre. At that time the piece was practically in its infancy, and those who saw it then would hardly recognize the production today as the same. Such a terrific success was scored upon its first presentation in Boston that Melville B. Raymond, under whose direction the production was made entered into negotiations with Managers Stair and Wilbur of the Majestic for an extended summer engagement at that house. By rearranging some of the time held at the theatre for other attractions, it was found possible to bring "Buster Brown" back for an engagement beginning next Monday night, and from the many inquiries that have been made at the theatre since the announcement was first made that "Buster" would return, it is fair to assume that the piece will enjoy a long and prosperous run in this city. Matinees will be given each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon.

A New City Hall.

Mr. Editor: The recommendation of a special committee in last year's Board of Aldermen, the annual report of the State Commissioner of Records, and the recent fire scare in the old building at West Newton, show that a new city hall ought to be built at the earliest possible moment.

Of our present debt almost $1,000,000 will be paid on or before July 1, 1906. A large part of that sum draws 6 per cent. interest. We can build a new city hall of stone, complete in every respect, architecturally beautiful, with ample grounds, and, all its needs considered, the handsomest building of its kind in Greater Boston, for a maximum cost of $400,000. Without much doubt the actual cost would be nearer $350,000. Whatever the amount were, the interest would be less than 4 per cent.

Is it not therefore self evident that we can begin a new city hall in 1906 build it as quickly as good workmanship will permit, and still have a much smaller debt than we have today, and consequently a lower tax rate, even if we would spend the outside figure of $400,000. It goes without saying that for such a great work we must go outside the debt limit. If Newton had not been willing to do this in its other improvements, instead of being Boston's most attractive suburb, as it now is, it would be little better than a country town, for neither its sewer system, its water system, nor its depressed tracks could have been undertaken. A new city hall is now the one thing needed to make Newton a finished product. All other things, such as school houses, police stations and engine houses, are routine expenditures for which it is never necessary to go outside of the debt limit.

Now if a new city hall is to be built, how shall we go about it. Shall we continue to talk about it until the present building burns down, with all its valuable records feeding the flames, or falls down during a stormy street railway hearing, carrying with it and burying beneath its ruins a precious freight of aldermen editors, millionaires, politicians, and plain people, and then rebuild in haste, or shall we fall into line with the spirit of the times, as New York and other cities are doing, treat the subject deliberately and intelligently, and ask our Board of Aldermen to authorize our Mayor to appoint a small special commission of our most representative citizens whose duty it shall be to consider all preliminary questions relating to the project, such as the site, the material, the size, the architecture etc. and report thereon to the Board of Aldermen on or before Feb. 1, 1906. This commission should of course consist of men who could afford to serve without pay. There are men in our city, entirely competent to deal with a question of this kind, to whom such a work would be a labor of love, and who would treat it with the careful attention and absence of haste which its importance demands. There can be very little doubt that the result of their deliberations would be a structure perfectly adapted to the various municipal needs and at the same time one of Greater Boston's architectural show-pieces.

The recent attempt to mar the beauty of the public grounds in Washington should arouse Newton to the importance of making a proper use of its own great natural advantages. Are we not all proud of the fact that it was the eloquent voice of one of our own citizens, in the national House of Representatives, that saved the beautiful Washington mall for the noble and imperishable uses intended by its founder? It is broad men, like our Congressmen, men who can see not only the practical side of a practical thing, but also the practical side of a beautiful thing that I have in mind for the special commission suggested above.

Pardon me, Mr. Editor, for taking so much of your space, and believe me,

Very gratefully yours,
Henry Bailey.

LELAND-DENNIS.

St. Mary's Episcopal church, Newton Lower Falls, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday evening, April twenty-sixth. The young people united in marriage were Mr. Waldorff Leland, son of the late Luther E. Leland for many years principal of the Hamilton school, and Miss Gertrude Dennis, oldest daughter of Mr. Frederick H. Dennis of Newton Lower Falls. Mr. Leland is now connected with the Carnegie Institute of Washington and Miss Dennis is well known in musical circles in Newton and vicinity. The church was artistically decorated with jonquils and white carnations by the Girls Friendly Society under the direction of Mrs. Norcross and Mrs. Curtis. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas L. Cole, rector of St. Mary's and Mr. Adelbert Morse presided at the organ. Promptly at eight o'clock the wedding procession passed up the aisle to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March sung by a vested quartette composed of Masters Victor Dennis and George Cobban and Messrs Fred Dennis and Benjamin K. Brown. The bride was gown in white mousseline de soie with a long tulle veil fastened with lilies of the valley and carried a white and gold prayer book. She was given away by her father. The maid of honor, Miss Florence Dennis, sister of the bride, wore white brussels net over pink and carried American Beauty roses. Mr. Clifford Spencer Anderson of Worcester acted as best man. The ushers were Ernest B. Huston and Rev. Edwin F. Snell of West Newton, Walter B. Bullen of Newton Centre, Donald McFayden of Toronto, Frederick T. Ford of Boston, C. Forrest Leland of Chicago. At the reception which immediately followed the ceremony the happy couple received the congratulations of their friends.

Camp Kineo.

After about 10 years experience in summer camps for boys, F. Dana Sears of Hyde Park, Mass., will reopen July 1st, his camp on Long Lake, Harrison, Me., three miles from North Bridgton, in the midst of New England's most charming scenery. Mr. Washington is pleasantly visible from the camp, as is Mt. Pleasant, which is 12 miles distant. The camp grounds cover 15 acres, is situated on high ground, in a grove of pines; thus having good drainage and a pleasant outlook. The adjacent country is dotted with lakes and mountains, presenting every variety of scenery and a pleasant field for excursions. This region is 300 feet above sea level and is commended for its beautiful climate, only boys of the best moral character and good habits, between 10 and 18 years, will be received. A Christian college man, to every seven boys, will aim to furnish out door life in the purest way and among the strongest and noblest boy companions. The camp can be reached in two ways from Portland, Me.: via the Maine Central R. R. to Sebago Lake station, thence by steamer across Sebago and Long Lake, a delightful excursion of 30 miles; or from Portland, take the Maine Central and Bridgton and Saco R. R., to Harrison, Me. Mr. Sears is a graduate of Dartmouth college, and a professor of mathematics in Stetson University, Deland, Fla. G. H. Senner, also a Dartmouth graduate, and present headmaster of Emerson Institute, the famous boys' school of Washington, D. C., and of many years camp experience, will be assistant manager. Any boy, really interested, can secure an illustrated booklet (see cut in another column) of F. D. Sears, 59 Lincoln street, Boston, Mass. Best of references furnished.

Newton.

Bishop Brady confirmed about 300 children at the Church of Our Lady last Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Alvin H. Clifford of Waverley avenue will give a luncheon to the executive board of the West Newton Woman's Educational Club at her home next Monday.

At the annual session of the Daughters of the Revolution held in Boston this week Mrs. Emma J. Ferris was elected historian general and Mrs. Augusta M. Stanley a member of the board of managers.

The eighth annual banquet of the Young Men's Club was held in the parlors of Eliot church last Tuesday evening. About fifty were present and the special guests were Rev. Dr. William H. Davis, Hon. Gorham J. Gilman, Mr. Charles S. Eustice, and Captain S. E. Howard. Prayer was offered by Dr. Davis and at the post-prandial exercises President W. C. Whitney was the toastmaster.

Mrs. Charlotte C. Park, widow of the late Hon John C. Park, formerly judge of the Newton police court, passed away in Dorchester last Sunday aged 80 years. Her husband was one of the most brilliant members of the Boston bar about the time of Choate, Hildard and other eminent lawyers. He was a prominent military man, at one time being the commander of the Boston City Guard and was widely known in political affairs. He graduated from Harvard in the class of 1874. Two sons were the result of the union; Carl Park and William Dean Park both moving west many years ago. The funeral was held in Roxbury Tuesday at 2 o'clock, Rev. Edward Cummings pastor of the South Congregational church officiating and the interment was at Forest Hills.

Eliot Guild.

The Hunnewell Club hall was crowded yesterday afternoon by ladies who were attracted by the presentation of "The Amazons" by the Eliot Guild. The male sex were supposed to be ruthlessly excluded but some of our young men have audacity as well as the use of their sisters' clothing. The play was a great success. Mrs. Utley's whistling was a revelation and received an encore. Mrs. Hallett was particularly clever as a Frenchman, and Miss Haskell carried off a difficult role with great credit. In fact all the young ladies who took male characters acted as if they were not unused to the garments.

Miss Vera Curtis and the Misses Trowbridge had charge of the music between the acts and a corps of competent ushers, headed by Miss Gilman handled the crowd promptly and well.

The whole affair was in charge of a committee consisting of the Misses Carolyn E. Childs, Helen Cobb, Helen Howes and Rose Loring.

The cast was as follows:
Barrington, Viscount Litterly Mrs. Edward R. Utley
Galfred, Earl of Tweenvayes Miss Jennie Haskell
Andre, Count de Grival Mrs. Edward M. Hallett
Rev. Roger Wincham Miss Helen Pitts
Fiton, (a Gamekeeper) Miss Rose Loring
Yonart, (a Servant) Miss Maida Whitney
Miriam, Marchioness of Castlejordan Mrs. George Angier
Lady Noeline Belturbet Mrs. Gladys Curtis
Lady Wilhelmina Belturbet Miss Caroline Eddy
Lady Thomasin Belturbet Miss Marie Foster
"Sergeant" Shuter Miss Grace Manning

Perry and Whitney Co., 8 Bosworth street, Boston, will be pleased to furnish estimates on outside and inside painting, wall papers, carpets, rugs, draperies, furniture, etc. He can be reached by mail or telephone, either 6640 Main or 158-4 Newton.

Among Women.

Mrs. J. Wesley Barber and Mrs. F. E. Stanley are delegates from the Social Science Club to the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which meets in St. Louis May 17th.

Mills undertaking rooms, 813 Washington street, Newtonville, Tel. 445-5. Leave calls at Rhodes' Drug store, Tel. N. H. 237-3.

The Waban Woman's Club's annual meeting for the election of officers was held on Monday at Mrs. B. H. Davidson's, Plainfield street. After the meeting a tea was held and entertainment was furnished by Miss Ruth Willis, soloist, Miss Margaret Davidson, pianist and Mrs. Putnam who recited.

ENTERTAINMENT CLUB.

The Channing church parlors were well filled with an appreciative audience, Wednesday evening the occasion being the final performance given under the direction of the Entertainment Club. The stage setting representing the Roman studio of Claud Hentley an artist in the one act comedy, "Apples" was decidedly effective the Pompeian red of the walls being a fine background for the numerous pictures and artistic furnishings. The character parts were well taken in this piece as they were in the two act comedy "The Young Mr. Pritchard" which followed and was most amusing from the opening lines and to the close of the curtain. The club is to be congratulated on the success of its season's work both from an artistic point of view and financially as it is understood that there is a good balance in the treasury.

Letter to J. W. Bacon, Newton.

Dear Sir: When you can buy paint for less than Devco; don't; save your money.

Mr Aaron Higgins, Plainfield, N. J., always used 15 gallons of paint for his house; Devco took 11.

Mr Ezra Rathmell, Williamsport, Pa., always used 11, Devco took 6.

Mr Hart Young, Girard, Pa., always used a gallon for certain rooms; took half as much Devco.

Mr Nathaniel Barber, Canton, N. Y., bought 12 Devco; used less than 6.

You can always buy paint for less than Devco; don't; save your money.

The wearing counts the same way and doubles the difference.

The cost of painting is by the gallon. Weak paint costs most; most gallons.

Yours truly F. W. Devco & Co

BEAUTIFUL STATIONS

On the Line of the Boston & Albany Railroad.

Described by Charles Mulford Robinson in "House and Garden."

The following article appeared in the April number of "House and Garden" published by Henry T. Coates and Co., Philadelphia, and has so much local interest that we take pleasure in reprinting it for the benefit of our readers.

To the commuter using a suburban railway the erection of pretty stations and the beautifying of their grounds is a matter of great concern. It means the extension of the home atmosphere quite to the railroad track. When he steps off the train he is at home—as far as the soothing calm of to other regions can alone make them of general interest.

This is the standpoint, then, from which properly to approach an account of how certain station grounds that are unusually successful have been developed. Such examples may be found on the New York Central's Boston and Albany division, the road that forms that division having been one of the pioneers in the work—gradually developed into an art—of beautifying station surroundings, having far distanced one of its contemporaries in the movement and a lovely scene can make him—without having still a quarter mile of dreary trudging before there comes heart's ease.

There is something in this, for the commuter's ideas are expansive. His house is wider than if he were in town, and it has a little garden around it; but even this increase of space is not enough for him. Consider how the landed proprietors—heartless speculators or mere corporations though they be—have found it financially worth while, in the larger returns they get, to give to the tract a pretty park-suggestive name; and so to lay out its streets and develop them that the whole district shall be garden-like and beautiful. It is not less to the railroad's interest than to that of the original proprietor of the land that the community should be well liked and populous. The railroad, then, is doing no more than its share no more than it owes to itself, in making its part of the town—which is also the town's official entrance—attractive. And when it does this, it does much for the commuter;—its own gain is dependent upon his—pleasing even this expansive ideas. It makes his home seem considerably nearer his office, and that means a great deal to railroad and to commuter.

But to the vast traveling public, whizzed through the suburban sta-having in permanence of effects outdone the other. Considered in this larger way, the study is full of suggestion and ought to have wide interest, for he who wills may learn—not merely what is here done, but what, under the like conditions, can be done. That makes the study personal and helpful.

The problem becomes simply this: A certain road is unusually successful in the artistic effect of its station grounds. These station grounds cannot, obviously, be all alike. They represent a great variety of topographical conditions. Given, then, this or that original condition of topography, what did the road do with it to attain such success? "House and Garden" has already had something to say regarding a few stations of the Newton Circuit, just around Boston. Though these include some of the best on the road, it is not necessary to further touch upon them here.

A station that was not illustrated in the previous article is Waban. Notice the pretty parklike effect here, and how much this is enhanced by the diagonal path that comes into the foreground of the picture. Two highways lead past the station. One crosses over the tracks at right angles, and to this the diagonal path leads, with effect far lovelier than if the ground between road and station station grounds, small as they are, are like a little park. This suggests that the landscape architect must have been left very free. After the railroad engineers had finished their work he must have done his untrammeled. The policy of noninterference is to be kept in mind as a fundamental principle in observing the other station grounds that are noted.

On the other half of the Circuit, the main line half, are Brighton and the Newtons—places passed over with hardly a word in the earlier article. Yet they are interesting as illustrating the treatment of a type of topography that is not uncommon near large cities and that always seems difficult to handle artistically. Here four tracks cut a broad, relentless swath, and they are thrust through the towns at a level lower than the adjacent streets so that there may be no excuse for grade crossings. Between stations the sides of the cut are prettily planted, but the highway is paralleling the steam road at the top of the bank leaving small space for gardening effects when a station is to be put in and a retaining wall substituted for the slope of the earth. What shall be done with the problem?

At Brighton the highway dips a little, and the station has been put at level, a flight of steps leading up from the railroad platform to the floor of the waiting-room. The retaining wall is brought frankly to the station, but at its top there are the bushes and shrubs of a little garden. This garden is beside the highway, with the tone station, charming from that side—as the center of the picture, and with no hint of the less pleasant parts of a railroad. At West Newton, on the other hand, the station, which is of the older type, has been built at the track level. At what must have been considerable expense, the retaining wall has been pushed clear beyond the building, and a road has been brought down to the level of the station. There follows the familiar result of a station that is only an incident, and a slight one, in the course of the railroad, while it has no essential connection with the town to which it ought to mean so much. The illustration shows the pleasantly planted embankment; but this stops as the station is reached, is lower than the approach road—hence barely visible from it—and can be said to add no charm to the station surroundings. It is merely making the best of a spoiled opportunity.

WELLESLEY FARMS STATION

Beyond the Newton Circuit the Wellesleys are the first places reached. At Wellesley Farms, which is the first of the three, the highway is about parallel to the railroad, with the little station lying between. In the tract that separates highway and railroad there is a pond, and probably most railroad companies would promptly have filled it up. But once more a good landscape architect is glad to get not only hints, but all the help he can, from Nature; and when in this case she furnished so charming and unusual a feature as a pond on station grounds, he availed himself of the opportunity. There is certainly a sensible and widely practicable suggestion in this station. He has protected the little sheet of water by a tangled wild border, and since it was not in quite the most convenient place he has swung the highway sharply around so that, while skirting, it may not trespass upon the pond. The result? Wellesley Farms Station is unique, and to be remembered. It has the strongest sort of individuality, as almost every site in nature would have if it were given a chance. You can have no doubt that people grow actually to love it, and can fancy little babies wheeled up and down there in their carriages—think of that, for a station on the main line of an important steam railroad! In this connection it should be observed, that as one comes to the station, the tracks themselves are quite "planted out." It is not the landscape architect's business to advertise steel rails and cinders. He does better than that for his road.

Next after Wellesley Farms is Wellesley Hills, and then comes Wellesley. There is at the latter place a condition that is extremely unusual, and one wholly delightful to a preacher of civic art, for a town tions at unchecked speed, the attractiveness of the setting is really of very little moment. The through passengers at that time are thinking, in a distributive or collective way, of satchels and umbrellas, and if they should have a thought for architectural or gardening design as applied to railroad stations their study would reward them with little more than a blur. In hopeless jumble of name-sign and porte-cochere, baggage truck and crimson rambler, perspective and proportion would be annihilated. The travelers would be little wiser than if they had devoted themselves wholeheartedly to satchel and umbrella.

For this reason a discussion of how any particular road has developed any particular stations is of general interest and value only in the suggestiveness of the examples. The question may be of immense interest to the commuters directly affected, and to the residents of the rival stations; but they make a small part of the traveling or the reading world. The applicability of the selected examples had been cleared for an unnecessary little plaza. Behind the bushes—mainly bridal wreath, if one may trust the memory of a June day when it was all abloom—the carriage drive leads into the highway, at the corner of the station grounds. An alternative plan would have thrust the planting where the path now is, and have led the path beside the road to the station. That would have been drearily commonplace, and thus does little Waban offer a good example of the value of a daring imagination in the planning even of station grounds. The other highway is parallel to the tracks, and you can see how the driveway, curving beyond the porte-cochere, reaches it. A landscape architect does not consider a road as a thing to be emphasized any more than is necessary, and to get a good picture he has to define or, in a measure shut in, his design. Faithful adherence to an artistic conception, without permitting the railroad ideal of sheer directness, utility and dead level to intrude, seems to be the secret of the good effect here secured. result is something more than pleasing. It is satisfying, and it enhances the dignity of a community which to its other outward attractions adds, obviously, that great thing a civic consciousness. If from the side of the town the effect is not quite so good—because the station has been rather “planted out” and minimized when, with the convergence of roads to it, it should have been emphasized and made a distinct accent or goal—the error is easily seen and the way of its correction is plain. The lesson that Wellesley teaches is as unmistakable as if the effect from the town were as surprisingly delightful as from the railroad, and even from the town side it is exceptionally good. With very slight changes the Wellesley approach could serve as a model.

Chatham, for all its planting, has much more the air of a station. Even without the telegraph poles its purpose could scarcely be mistaken. The same may be said of Canaan, which is interesting as a very small station with very small grounds. Both these structures are of the more distinct type designed by H. H. Richardson. The grounds at Canaan are so small that they might well have discouraged planting, but one finds that this has been done—around the borders, where it would shut out structures that might possibly be objectionable. There is at least that chance, even on small grounds, if the station be good enough to prevent such an attitude from seeming ridiculous on the part of the railroad.

And now, in running the length of

CHATHAM STATION.

BOSTON & ALBANY R. R.

Five minutes from Wellesley, which is to say a half hour from Boston, Natick is reached, and one discovers even from the car window that the city's suburbs have been left behind. That, however, is incidental, for we are seeking hints and there are still lessons for suburban stations. The station is now decidedly the best looking building in sight, and a good deal of the town, one has to confess, is in sight. The grounds from the station to the main street form a perfect little garden, but, as far as one can see, its good example has had no effect. Even the railroad seems discouraged and the slopes of the cut are now abandoned to their natural dreariness. If Natick would brace up and make itself as attractive as the towns to the east the road, we have seen stations below the level and above the level of the nearest highway, with large grounds and small, with and without natural features of interest, even—at the extremes stations at a point of junction and in a civic center. Surely among these examples, considered not for themselves but for their suggestiveness, there is many a hint for the suburban or village improvement society that wants to “fix up” the railroad approach to the town. There is not often a more popular place at which to begin work, nor is there often a better one. If the corporation sees that the society has popular support, and is in earnest, it is almost sure so to co-operate as to make the movement a success. And success of it, one feels sure that the railroad would extend its careful work—a reflection that suggests the reciprocal relation in this matter between a town and its railroad.

A few minutes more and an important junction is reached in South Framingham. Busy railroad junctions are seldom inviting, for art has such a deal to overcome that the obstacles seem to dishearten it. South Framingham is no exception in the restriction of the ground available for planting, but there is a very good building and wherever there does appear a corner that can be planted the opportunity is availed of. At Westboro, a little further on, a highway crossing the tracks at right angles suggests that the train shall stop well counts for much at the start. It is an old and true saying that nothing succeeds like success.

Equal Suffrage League.

Thursday evening April 29th the Equal Suffrage League met at the home of Mr. George A. Walton, Chestnut street West Newton.

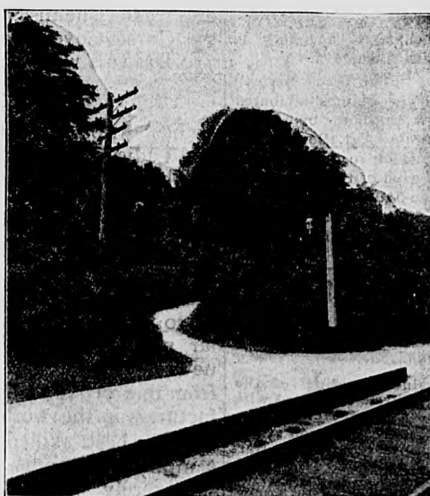

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Katherine Lent Stevenson, President of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U.

She gave reminiscences of Settlement Work in Chicago. Prefacing this subject with reasons why she believed in Equal Suffrage. Most women pass through three stages before accepting Equal Suffrage. Riddle—Opposition—Sense of Justice—then comes universal acceptance.

These points were illustrated as she spoke of the Settlement Work at the Chicago Commons, where Mrs. Stevenson lived for two years. Dr. Graham Taylor is at the head of this Settlement work.

Seventy thousand people live in this crowded district. The work began among the children with the kindergarten, then the mothers were reached and classes and clubs formed to help and brighten their lives. Next a men's club was started, with a free floor and no favor. Any question of the day is brought up and discussion and debate follow.

The working together of men and women and the union of various organizations working together for the common good, will, Mrs. Stevenson feels, bring about justice and right to all. Beautiful music was rendered during the evening. Light refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Gordon of Glendora, Cal., took place last week Wednesday evening at Azusa, Cal. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Josiah Sibley of the First Presbyterian church of that town, the maid of honor was Miss Dean Gordon, sister of the bride and the best man was Mr. Bertram E. Williams of Ontario, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Stimson will visit Newton and Tennessee on their bridal trip, and will make their home in Los Angeles.

Deestrick Skule.

A large audience, despite the rain gathered in Lincoln hall last Wednesday evening to see the Deestrick Skule. In the cast were representatives of prominent families of Upper Falls, Elliot and Newton Highlands, and the affair was under the auspices of the Pierian Club of Upper Falls. The object of the entertainment was to raise money for the adornment of the new Wade school. What the “adornment” will be, will depend upon the proceeds.

The many friends of the old time favorite Mr. George Randall, enthusiastically greeted his appearance as Obediah Buzzard the typical school boy of yore old time.

The dialogue was bright and much of it original, and every opportunity for local hits was seized upon.

The 1830 long shoulder effect and short waisted and full gathered skirts, together with few styles of pantalettes were much in evidence in the costumes of the ladies. In the Exhibition Day scene the plain aprons were discarded, and the costumes worn were almost all from seventy-five to one hundred years old. One of the pupils wore her grandmothers' wedding dress.

As for the “boys,” their costumes were evidently representations of the days when there were but few men tailors. To see prominent business men arrayed in garments the original color and texture of which was difficult to determine, was very ludicrous. Mr. Fred F. Breene as Hezekiah Pendergrass, the pedagogue, was gorgeous to behold.

All the parts were effectively taken, and particular mention should be made of Mr. George Randall as Obediah Buzzard, Mr. Walter Randall as Squire Small and Mr. A. Clark as Baby Brother and Mr. W. Willard as Daniel W. Tompkins.

Mrs. Edwin Cooper rendered very sweetly two quaint ballads of auld lang syne, and topical songs were sung by Mr. Gordon Newell and Mr. Gardner Gould, with clever references to the topics of the hour, which quite brought it down the house.

Music was furnished by the Elliot Orchestra who kindly responded to encores.

On the whole, the Pierian Club is to be congratulated on the success of its first public entertainment.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

It is almost impossible to preserve a proper degree of order in the House during a daily session. Speaker Frothingham does remarkably well, and deserves much credit, but the lawlessness of law-makers, is something incomprehensible. It is an unusual thing to find a member who can command the attention of the House in debate. A large number are given to wandering about and engaging others in conversation. Groups of half a dozen or more will gather about some story teller, and listen to a yarn, paying as little attention to what is being said upon important matters as is paid to what they say when they, in turn, take the floor to debate some of their pet measures. This conduct has become so common that it escapes attention, but when a roll-call is in progress, absolute quiet and attention should be compelled. At almost every roll-call the Speaker is obliged to use his gavel frequently to bring about a sufficient degree of order to enable the Clerk to hear the responses. Laws are practically made, or unmade, by the roll-call, and yet scores of members pay so little attention to this important feature, that they often do not know how they are voting, or why they vote as they do. One member recently arose and asked the Speaker how he was recorded as voting upon a certain measure, upon which a roll-call had been taken, where every vote had been given on one side of the question. To be sure, there are some men in the House who attend to the transaction of business in a proper manner, and by their conduct check the thoughtlessness of the indifferent. Such men as Newton, Peabody, Moseley, Ham, Lowell, Doty and others, can command the attention of the House, but these men are not always talking. Then again, there are men who would exert a greater influence by their public speech, if they talked less. Those who have been mentioned above would have less influence if they were forever talking. Speech is silver, silence is golden, sometimes in the same lips.

Representative Treadway of Stockbridge won a decided victory last week by the substitution of a bill to provide for supervising the rates of the Fire Insurance Companies. Mr. Treadway claimed that the Boston Fire Underwriters, employees of Insurance Companies, set the rates for the state, and it was natural they should keep up the rates. He contended the profits in Massachusetts during the past decade in fire insurance, had been enormous. He believed the state should extend its supervision and give the people some opportunity for redress.

Representative Walker of Waltham opposed the bill as unconstitutional. Scofield of Ipswich favored the bill as did Drinkwater of Braintree, while Hall of Winchester made the somewhat questionable assertion that he thought the people of the commonwealth were satisfied with the insurance companies. The House listened to the debate, and then by a vote of 70 to 44, substituted the bill, and sent it to the Ways and Means Committee.

The ziz-zag course of the Nahant Bath House Bill from the time it was first referred to a committee, reminds one of the Western members of a rail fence. In the first place, it was adversely reported by the Metropolitan Affairs Committee in the House, and when that Committee was turned down March 3rd, it went to Ways and Means, and the latter reported, after holding almost a month, reference to the next General Court, but that report also was defeated, and the bill went to the House and Senate to engrossment, but fought at every stage, and finally went to the Governor. When it reached the Executive Chamber, the Governor touched a button and the bill was recalled. His excellency intimated that there was something nearer to godliness than cleanliness of person. Seventy thousand dollars is a pretty good price for a bath tub, and the present state of the finances, the Governor thinks, will warrant the good people on the Nahant beach in going into the Atlantic bath tub awhile longer. It was a perversion of the truth to intimate that the Governor did not think those people needed a bath once in awhile. He doubtless thought that the ocean dimensions were perhaps more appropriate.

The gypsy moth has finally got what it deserves. The legislature has declared the moth a nuisance, and when the Great and General Court is not divided upon the question as to what constitutes a nuisance, it is just as well to conclude that the status of the object has been settled in the physical as well as the moral world. No emigrant ever landed on our shores that had a harder time of it than the gypsy moth, unless the Chinaman be excepted. If the gypsy could only be deported as other emigrants can be, it might help things. This bill authorizes cities and towns to notify the property owners to abate such nuisances on his land, and if he fails to act in fourteen days, the authorities may do it, and charge the expenses to the owner. That settles it with the moth, and it also settles it with some of the property owners, perhaps. It may be that the worst that could happen to some people would be to hold a deed of certain pieces of land in the infested district.

How would the reader vote upon the following bill, if he was a member of the legislature?

"No person shall be employed in any department of the commonwealth, or by any country, city or town, or by any person, association or corporation contracting with them, or by any quasi public corporation where the duties of the person so employed are to be entirely performed within the territorial limits of the commonwealth, unless such person shall be a citizen of the United States or have made a primary declaration of his intention to become a citizen of the United States."

Never mind now about Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Andrew Jackson, or Abraham Lincoln. How would you vote? Think it over and write the puzzle department of this paper.

On the face of it, the proposition to tax sentiment is a new feature in the conduct of the state toward her citizens. Mrs. John L. Gardner is a lady of wealth, who has a taste for the beautiful in art, accompanied by a desire to share that quality with others who appreciate the handiwork of the masters. For this purpose, Mrs. Gardner built, at great expense, an art museum in the Fenway, and filled it with beautiful works of art gathered from all parts of the world. The cost of this structure, with its contents, is said to have been very large, but its real value cannot be estimated in any banking house or at the desk of the appraiser. That value is enhanced by every uplift of noble sentiment and generous impulse which may be born among those who gaze upon the canvas and marbles there gathered. The world can hardly escape being enriched by the existence of the Gardner Art Museum in Boston. It is one of the higher educational institutions of the country, and is a living tribute to the noble character of the woman who has contributed it to the world's collection of better things. Its presence in Boston, in time to come, will be worth more than a Board of Trade or a steamship line.

What has all this to do with things under the gilded dome? What has the Gardner Art Museum in the Fenway to do with the State Government, where we are supposed to live and move and have our being? Well, the reader will hardly believe it, but it is true nevertheless, that blanks for taxation purposes have been sent from the State House to the Gardner Art Museum. That is like taxing Berkshire scenery; like taxing the prayers of Chaplain Horton of the Senate; the songs of the birds of the forests; the music of the mountain brooks, or the laughter of the child. Have we come to this? Taxing sentiment! To screen the action of the publicans with the miserable pretence that the museum exists for the purposes of revenue is altogether too flimsy to admit of serious consideration, and actually dignifies every suggestion made by the governor looking to the increase of revenue by the state. In the name of common-sense, as well as common decency, those taxation blanks should be recalled and due apology made without delay. If necessary, a bill should be introduced and passed by the legislature, forever exempting the Gardner Art Museum from taxation.

Probably the smartest piece of money-making business indulged in by any newspaper has been that of a Boston paper where a project was inaugurated some months ago to send a hundred people to the St. Louis Fair in a special train, all expenses to be paid by the paper. All that had to be done was to cut a certain coupon out of the paper and send it to the office. Then the one hundred people that sent in the largest number of coupons were to be sent to the Fair. This was started a scheme that has brought a great harvest of dollars to the paper and nervous prostration to hundreds of contestants and their friends. One man who is endeavoring to secure a free trip says that money enough has been spent upon him to send twenty people to the Fair and he himself has not been able to sleep nights for a month. He says he is only fit to be sent to a sanitarium rather than a Fair, and that he would not go into anything like it again for forty trips. It will not be long before something else will be started to keep up the circulation, and another example will be introduced to show the trend of modern journalism.

More law is proposed to promote honesty in election. In this instance, it is in the line of election expenses and is directed toward caucus practices, particularly where a nomination is equal to an election. By this new measure it is proposed to require the return of all expenses, both great and small. If it should become a law any time in the future, the same results will no doubt be obtained as now, and the same efficient methods will be practiced by those who are active in politics. It is up-hill work to legislate honesty into political veins. The present method of returning political expenses is one of the amusing features of our campaign.

The Springfield Republican says that it likes the kicker because he makes things lively in his vicinity and relieves the monotony. The Boston Herald says that the mule does the same thing. Now, which is which?

One of the interesting events of the session occurred when Hayes of Lowell was pleading with tears in his voice for a pension for a blind convict in Charlestown prison. For once the dry member from Ben Butler's old home was moist. However, the words that were wet with the sympathy of "Old Hundred" fell upon stony hearts and the House took advantage of the doubt.

Canadian reciprocity was thrown clear down cellar when the House got hold of the Drinkwater resolution the other day. Drinkwater and Conlister together could not save it. Evidently the House thinks that the United States can exist a while longer without Canada.

Everything points to the idea that the House believes that the direct tax is the fairest way to raise money. Who knows but that it is correct, any how the State is in a fair way to test the matter.

"I trust that I am warranted in believing that any one who knows me will not attribute such unworthy activities as were just uttered by the gentleman." That was the neat manner in which Representative Lowell of Newton closed an incident the other day.

The misprint in the Boston Advertiser last week, to make a certain paragraph read: "Pork Commissioners" instead of "Park Commissioners" might have been more of an error than it was.

Edgar J. Bliss

MAINE'S BURIED TREASURE.

Until recent years the gem production of the United States was extremely small. Within the past twenty years Montana has produced a number of valuable sapphires, North and South Carolina have produced many valuable beryls and aquamarines. Diamonds have been found in some of the Southern states.

About 80 years ago some students discovered gem tourmalines on Paris Hill in Maine and about the same time Dr. Parker Cleveland reported some emeralds of deep color from Topsham, Maine.

The gem production of the United States has steadily increased until last year $500,000 worth were produced. No inconsiderable proportion of this sum was mined in the western part of Maine.

The Mt. Mica tourmaline deposit on Paris Hill was opened some twenty years ago and has been one of the regularly worked gem mines of the United States ever since. This mine produced in 1882 two tourmalines of a grass green color, weighing about 30 carats each. Mr. Merrill who operates this mine has in his own collection a choice gem of 41 carats of faint green and pink tints, and the finest green crystal in the world, valued at several thousand dollars, capable of cutting two gems of a hundred carats each.

At Stoneham, a short distance from Mt. Mica mine, the finest aquamarine ever obtained in the United States was mined. This stone weighs 133 carats and is in the Field Columbian Museum in Chicago.

The pegmatite vein series on which Mt. Mica deposit is situated extends to the city of Auburn and probably beyond through Topsham. Several other mines have been worked for tourmalines and aquamarines on this vein, notably the Rich Pulsifer mine and the Hatch mine on Mt. Apatite and mines at Hebron and Rumford. In 1902 the Waterford Mica company opened up a promising find of gem tourmaline and assorted minerals in the town of Newry near North Rumford. Some of the crystals were of immense size and of brilliant color, both pink and green. Several thousand dollars' worth of gem material had already been secured at that time.

In 1901 a pocket of exceedingly rare purple colored apatite was found at the Pulsifer mine in Auburn. The find was of great value. This mine has been a steady producer of tourmalines and beryls for the past three years and has opened some very rich pockets.

The California tourmaline mines have been opened only a few years and have had a phenomenal growth. Their tourmalines are mostly pink and of great beauty. But their green stones have not as yet come up to the quality nor have they the market value of the Maine product.

The demand for semi-precious stones has rapidly increased in the last three years and the price of tourmalines, beryls, aquamarines, sapphires, etc., has been increasing with the demand. The last United States geological survey of Maine was made in 1861. The commission ranked Maine as second in the Union in the value of its gem deposits. Gem mining in the western part of Maine bids fair to become one of its greatest industries and will go far in supplying labor for the population, as lumbering and fisheries disappear.—Lewiston Journal.

Newton Centre Golf Club.

At this early time in the year the course is in better condition than it has been for many seasons. It is evident from this significant fact that the permanent greens will be open for play at an early date. The ditches have been deepened in some cases to insure adequate drainage; the long grass in front of all tees will be cut closely; the permanent greens are being greatly improved under the careful supervision of the Green Committee, in short, the course as a whole offers greater advantages for play and less objectionable features than ever before. Arrangements have been made so that the club house will be open to members at all reasonable hours of the day. Every afternoon and on holidays an attendant will be at the service of all players.

The Tournament Committee has made a special effort to arrange the season's fixtures so as to harmonize with the wishes of the great majority of the members. In addition to the regular fixtures, the series of team matches on every Saturday afternoon and on holidays, ending July 4, give abundant opportunity for a widespread and permanent interest in the season's play. The women of the club will be particularly interested in the announcement that they are eligible to all the events of the season. Since practically all these events are handicaps, the largest opportunity for interesting play is assured.

Police Paragraphs.

"People who ride on street cars and railroad trains have a right to do so unmolested and without being forced to suffer indignities at the hands of intoxicated persons. Newton has always been noticeably free from disturbances of this kind, and I am determined to stop them before they become more frequent. Any person brought into this court and adjudged guilty of such an offence as this before me will find that it will be made expensive for him."

In these words Judge John C. Kennedy of the municipal court summed up the case of Stephen McElroy, an employee of the Newton and Watertown gas light company, who was arraigned before him Monday morning for assault on George W. Kinch, a Boston elevated conductor. He then found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $35.

McElroy was arrested at his home Sunday night on a warrant secured by patrolman McLaughlin. According to the testimony, McElroy was a passenger on an outward bound car late Friday night. Conductor Kinch alleges that several passengers standing in the rear vestibule of the car were using profanity, and that he admonished them to be careful. McElroy he asserted thereupon threw his arm about his neck and forced him from his seat.

The conductor's story was corroborated by the motorman of the car whose attention was attracted to the fracas by the loud talking and by Frederick A. Brown a Waltham business man.

McElroy was represented by counsel and his defence was a denial of the conductor's story. He asserted that his only act was as a peacemaker between the conductor and another passenger whom the latter ejected from the car.

John A. Nugent, John M. Barry, Tim P. Daley, Frank White and John Conroy the five West Newton men arrested early Sunday morning by a squad of officers charged with gaming on the Lord's day pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $10 each.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT.

Mr. Scholl was a steel engraver by profession and for many years was in the employ of the American Bank Note Company when they manufactured all the government notes. He was considered at the head of his profession in this country and his reproductions of Emerson are noted. He has been able to work until a very few years. He leaves three sons, Arno, of New York, Frederick, formerly City Engineer of Newton and now of Philadelphia and Alfred of Norfolk, Conn. Funeral services were held from the Church of the New Jerusalem on Highland avenue Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. John Goddard officiating and the interment was in Newton Cemetery.

DEATH OF MISS TROWBRIDGE.

On Friday last there passed away from sight of friends a rare and beautiful life. She left a body that had been but a poor servant and a vehicle of much suffering. The brave tenant of this pain-racked frame was distinguished for her unselfish interest in the pains and joys of others. Hers was not the negative goodness, frequently coupled with weak physical organization, but an active, positive, righteousness. She was fearless in the assertion of what to her was right yet she had the broadest and sweetest charity for those whom another might have hurriedly condemned. Of a rare artistic temperament she not only cultivated the purest and truest forms of her chosen language, music, but she was unusually sensitive to Nature's various moods. Her numerous friends will cherish the memory of her loyalty to her Master and to them—of her patient endurance of pain—of her unselfish activity in behalf of the needy and all around her—and of her peaceful departure for the realm where reign health and harmony and the Father of us all.

Miss Louise Trowbridge was 32 years and 7 months old.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at the house upon Peabody street where a large number of her personal friends gathered to pay their last tribute of affection and to mingle and exchange their heartfelt sympathy and words of genuine appreciation of her character. Rev. Dr. Davis conducted the services most sympathetically and the remarks of Rev. Dr. Patrick who spoke from a personal and long continued friendship, were not only beautifully expressed but gave to all present a sense of being justly spoken.

Masses of exquisite flowers were the tributes sent by many friends.

We took pleasure last week in giving space to Mr. Bailey's interesting letter regarding a new City Hall. We agree heartily with Mr. Bailey in all but the time when the City can afford to enter upon this work. His scheme of a preliminary commission of influential citizens, which follows the plan adopted when the boulevards were conceived, is most excellent and the conclusions of such a commission would probably go farther towards meeting the approval of a majority of our citizens than any other. The need of a new City Hall, save for better accommodations and artistic effects, is not so apparent. The fire danger in the present structure has been highly magnified. The building is heated from a plant several hundred feet away, and there is no fire within save from a few gas burners. The edifice is so situated that if it should catch fire from the outside, the fire apparatus can easily reach three sides. The greatest possible fire danger comes from the church on the east, and it goes without saying that the risk from that source is not large.

We do not believe the city will be in financial condition to afford the $350,000 expense estimated by Mr. Bailey for at least five years and possibly ten years. The payment of the water loan to which Mr. Bailey alludes, is outside the debt limit established by the state, and we very much doubt if the city would be allowed to go outside the limit for a new City Hall. The absolute necessities of the city in the way of schoolhouses, drainage, and other important enterprises, which are included in the debt limit, are such that we greatly fear that the borrowing capacity of the city for several years, will hardly meet even these necessary expenses.

And from our point of view Newton needs a lower tax rate far more than a new City Hall. Personal property and desirable citizens can be attracted to this city by a cut of a dollar or two in our tax rate and this inducement to growth should certainly be given a fair trial before a large interest account is added to the yearly budget.

It is therefore evident that while a new City Hall is a proper subject for debate, it is hardly wise to take other than an academic view of the matter at this time.

Our neighboring city of Boston is guilty of a most contemptible trick in the endeavor to obtain legislation which would delay the abolition of all grade crossing work on the B. and A. road including that in Newton until after the work at East Boston had been accomplished. Fortunately our city authorities were wide awake, and although the bill had been admitted by the Senate Committee on Rules the House Committee gave the City Solicitor a hearing and have since recommended that admission of the bill be refused.

We cannot conceive how the city of Boston can justify its underhanded action, when there has been no effort by Newton to delay the East Boston matter, and where there can be no reason why both the East Boston and Newton work should not proceed simultaneously.

With the opening of the automobile and bicycle season, care should be taken by everyone to prevent the careless placing of broken glass on the roadways. The principal sources of complaint come from broken bottles, thrown heedlessly from passing vehicles or by pedestrians, and from broken insulators, dropped from telephone or electric light poles. The damage done is so unnecessary that it should only need a gentle hint to prevent its repetition.

The re-election of Mr. Charles F. Gilman as President of the New England Whist Association is a deserved tribute to a strong combination of whist and executive ability.

The opening of the Boston parkways to automobiles is a matter of justice to a large number of heavy taxpayers.

Miss Laura Henry will give an organ recital at Berkeley Temple in Boston on Thursday evening, May nineteenth at eight o'clock. Tickets fifty cents, on sale at Hubbard's drug store.

Among Women.

The last meeting for the season of the Ladies Home Circle will be held next Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the West Newton Unitarian church.

The Newton Federation of Women's Clubs held its annual meeting, Tuesday, May third, in the West Newton Unitarian church, by invitation of the Women's Educational Club.

Mrs. M. Theresa Rowe, president of the hostess club, extended to all a most cordial welcome to which Mrs. L. Augusta Carter, president of the Federation responded.

The morning session was devoted to business; the annual reports of Federation officers, club presidents and the police matron, and the election of officers.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. Reta W. Wetherbee; vice presidents, Mrs. F. W. Jones, Mrs. F. H. Tucker, Mrs. L. T. Billings; recording secretary, Miss Grace M. Burt; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. L. Bailey; treasurer, Miss Lilla A. Rider; auditor, Mrs. A. G. Sherman.

After lunch the afternoon was devoted to an Old Home Week celebration in the historic town of Newton. Mrs. Wetherbee as chairman, welcomed the returning daughters of Newton and read a letter of greeting from His Excellency, Gov. Bates. Music was furnished by a chorus of ladies who dressed as schoolgirls, brought kindergarten chairs and seated themselves upon the stage. Mrs. Philip Carter was in charge of the chorus, and had, moreover, written the words of the songs.

Mrs. S. Arthur Thompson of the Pierian Club gave most interestingly the "Early Traditions of the South Side of Newton."

Mrs. Wallace C. Boyden, of the Newtonville Guild appeared in old time costume as the "Village Gossamer" and while busily employed in sewing a patch-work quilt, gave mirth-provoking bits of gossip.

Mrs. Virginia Yeamans Remnitz of Newton Centre, read an original story which appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, "The Eternal Masculine," a story which revealed the authors' insight into boy nature.

The poem written for the occasion by Miss S. Alice Ranlett of the Auburnville Review Club, ably described the part Newton took in the battles at Concord and Lexington.

"The Village Doctor" was well portrayed by Mrs. Mary R. Martin of Newtonville.

"What the Schools are doing to Promote Good Citizenship" was thoughtfully presented by Mrs. Joseph Congdon of Waban. Mrs. E. N. Walton in her quaint costume reminiscent of the "Village School-mistress," and added much to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

The oration of the celebration was delivered by a deep thinker and a seeker for hidden truth, Mrs. J. W. McIntyre of the Newton Social Science Club. Among other discoveries made by the orator was the discovery of radium in the brain of woman, hence no one should mourn if her head is heavy, in consideration of the high value of radium. With the singing of "Home Sweet Home" the program was concluded.

Real Estate.

Alvord Bros. have sold for the estate of Albert F. Hayward to J. O. Reay an estate at Newton Highlands consisting of a frame house and 11,360 feet of land on Allerton road, the whole assessed for $5500.

Outing for Boys.

After about 10 years experience in summer camps for boys, F. Dana Sears of Hyde Park, Mass., will depart July 1st, his camp on Long Lake, Harrison, Me., three miles from North Bridgton, in the midst of New England's most charming scenery. Mr. Washington is plainly visible from the camp, as is Mt. Pleasant, which is 12 miles distant. The camp grounds cover 15 acres, is situated on high ground, in a grove of pines; thus having good drainage and a pleasant outlook. The adjacent country is dotted with lakes and mountains, presenting every variety of scenery and a pleasant field for excursions. This region is 300 feet above sea level and is commended for its healthful climate. Only boys of the best moral character and good habits, between 10 and 18 years, will be received. A Christian college man, to every seven boys, will aim to furnish out door life in the purest way and among the strongest and noblest boy companions. The camp can be reached in two ways from Portland, Me.: via the Maine Central R. R. to Sebago Lake station, thence by steamer across Sebago and Long Lake, a delightful excursion of 30 miles; or from Portland, take the Maine Central and Bridgton and Saco R. R., to Harrison, Me. Mr. Sears is a graduate of Dartmouth college, and a professor of mathematics in Stetson University, Deland, Fla. G. H. Senser, also a Dartmouth graduate, and present headmaster of Emerson Institute, the famous boys' school of Washington, D. C., and of many years camp experience, will be assistant manager. Any boy, really interested, can secure an illustrated booklet (see cut in another column) of F. D. Sears, 59 Lincoln street, Boston, Mass. Best of references furnished.

WATERTOWN SAVINGS BANK.

Mortgagee.

John E. Abbott, Attorney for Mortgagee,
85 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.
Watertown, May 12, 1904.

BOAST OF PRESIDENT SMITH.

They called him Smith of Utah,
For he bore that mysterious name,
And he'd worked with cheer full many
A multiplying the same.
So he counted his brides on his fingers
As he sat by his Mormon hearth,
"Undoubtedly we are the people,"
Said he,
"For the Smiths shall inherit the earth."
"And why should the Browns and the Joneses
For numerical conquest strive?
"I've children," said he—"now let me see—
Some forty or forty-five.
With a hundred and thirty grandsons
Of plentiful Mormon girth.
There's joy to the kith of the tribe of Smith,
For they shall inherit the earth."
"Let Roosevelt gasp in horror
When I marry another bride,
He dare not abuse whom he cannot accuse
Of racial suicide.
I've sown with a Solomon's wisdom
My seed in a land of death,
And it's easy to see that it's owing to me
That Smith shall inherit the earth."
They called him Smith of Utah,
For he bore that mysterious name,
And he never would shirk the heaven-
sent work
Of multiplying the same.
He had texts from the Book of Mormon,
He had maxims of weight and worth,
But the truest of all that he ever let fall
Was, "Smiths shall inherit the earth."

Norumbega Park

Patrons of this delightful park will be glad to learn that the seating capacity of the open air theatre is being enlarged and a roof provided to shelter the crowds from the sun and rain. This is a very desirable improvement. There was much opposition felt on the part of many of the citizens of Newton when the park and a rural theatre bid fair to become a reality. It was an outcome of the fine boulevard which leads from the city directly to the grounds and the Charles river. Especially did the quiet and beautiful town of Auburndale regard the anticipated invasion of the bad and indifferent and undesirable crowds from Boston and elsewhere, protests were heard but without avail. The thing had been accomplished and it could not be helped. What has been the result? Not so bad as it was at first feared. The grounds have been made very attractive. Interesting animals have their home here for the amusement of the children and a commodious building fitted up with rocking chairs and cribs for an all day outing for mothers and their babies, while other buildings afford every convenience desired. There are rustic seats and arbors on the banks of the river, refreshment booths of various kinds, and an excellent restaurant, and daily a band of music helps to while the hours away. An electric fountain at night is brilliant and beautiful with its ever changing shades of color, and last but not least, is the pretty rustic theatre. This has been under good management, many of our best citizens have patronized it, and it can be said that the performances upon the stage have not been objectionable in character, a proper regard has been shown not to offend in this respect. This is as it should be, for the thousands who flock there many of them are parents and their children, fathers who do not possess the means to hire a carriage, but they can avail themselves of the great privilege of the lovely ride on the electric out to this charming spot and after working every day in the week who can blame them for seeking health and happiness even on a Sunday, during the warm summer weather. There are police boats upon the river, to insure good behaviour, and policemen within and without the park to prevent any disturbance and to watch any suspicious person. The authorities and the citizens of Newton should also be vigilant and hold themselves responsible for maintaining law and order, at this pleasant resort within our borders. Our Mayor has given evidence of his earnestness in other matters and by the aid of the press and every voter may be encouraged in every good effort.

THE STEAM AUTOMOBILE.

At a meeting of the Colorado Automobile Club held in the Boston Building at Denver recently, Mr. F. O. Stanley of Newton read a paper upon the steam automobile. Mr. Stanley began by emphasizing the fact that man is a product of evolution, this being shown by both the origin of species and human achievements. Particularly is this true in the domain of transportation, a comparison of the facilities of a hundred years ago and today showing astounding results. However advanced a civilization may be, it falls far short of modern requirements if attention to transportation is lacking. Pizarro found a people in Peru far advanced in civilization except for the question of locomotion. Their ignorance on this subject was almost beyond belief, a knowledge of the common wheel being entirely absent. Today some of the descendants of this people are so ignorant of the laws of motion that it is said some of them have been ground to a jelly by steam locomotives, simply because they did not know enough to get off the track when trains came in sight.

About all that man can do is to move things, whether it be in causing chemical actions to take place or in some other sphere of activity. Great triumphs have been reached in moving things, first by the introduction of mechanical power, and second, by increasing rapidity of motion. We are now living in an age of unusual activity in the improvement of locomotion. This is the dawn of the horseless age, the day being far ahead. The horse doesn't favor it, however, and the only horses that have been displaced have been a few on overland stage routes and a good many pleasure horses. The more general displacement of the horses is held back by the condition of the roads, the lack of suitable machines, and the lack of mechanical knowledge. A good road may be defined as one which is affected by neither moisture nor dryness. The difference in road conditions is responsible for the greater progress which France and Germany have made in automobile development as compared with the United States. Given a good road between Denver and Colorado Springs, for instance, the seventy-five mile run would become a pleasurable trip of three hours' time, instead of the trying journey of the present day. As a substitute for good roads the automobilist falls back upon the power of gasoline, steam and electricity to carry him over the highways now in existence. The efficiency attained in the use of the first two of these agents falls as low as five per cent, while Mr. Stanley also maintained that it is utterly out of the question for the storage battery automobile to undertake to entirely replace the horse at present.

A type of steam automobile which in the future will go a long way toward displacing the horse is that one which will use coal directly as fuel. Under ideal conditions one pound of anthracite coal or coke will evaporate about thirteen pounds of water. An evaporation of eight pounds of water is well within the limits of possibility, and this, properly utilized, as steam power, will propel one ton a distance of one mile. With coal or coke costing $10 per ton—a figure conservative enough for some years to come—the cost of fuel per ton mile comes to one half cent. In competing with steam machines a horse eats five cents' worth of hay and oats in doing a similar amount of work, while a horse on a good road can only haul one ton ten miles in a day. A enormous field for the use of automobiles is found in the requirements of heavy trucking, heavy express wagons and omnibuses supplementing steam and electric service in rural towns. Such service will be smokeless, odorless and noiseless.

BLUNDERS OF CONSERVATISM

The "Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage to Women" has lately sent out its annual manifesto, "The Remonstrance." This little document is almost always marked by striking errors of fact; and this year it outdoes itself in that respect. It says, for instance, that hitherto Mr. Blackwell and the other persons who have petitioned for a vote for tax-paying women have done so as individuals, and have taken pains to explain that they did not represent the Suffrage Association; but that now "the attitude of the suffragists has changed, and the proposition in Massachusetts has had the official support of the Suffrage Association." This is a direct and gross misstatement. Not only is it untrue that the proposition has had the official support of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, but Mr. Blackwell and the other individuals in Massachusetts who have been in the habit of asking for tax payers' suffrage sent in no petition for it this year, because they thought it best that all efforts should be concentrated upon a single measure—the municipal suffrage bill recommended by Governor Bates.

This is a fair sample of the ignorance and inaccuracy of the "Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage to Women." If the officers of that society know so little about what the Suffrage Association is doing right here in their own State of Massachusetts, how much reliance is to be placed upon their assertions as to the workings of woman suffrage in Colorado and Australia?

Alice Stone Blackwell.

NEWTOWNE CHAPTER, S. A. R.

Newtowne Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, held its final meeting of this season on Monday evening of last week at the Newton Club in Newtonville with excellent attendance of members and friends. Dr. J. F. Frisbie of Newton read interesting papers entitled "A Morning on the Kappahannock" and "An Unpremeditated Joke," both relating to Civil War incidents. Newtowne Chapter contains as members several Civil War veterans, who especially appreciated these contributions. The doctor also exhibited a cavalry sabre captured during a Civil War engagement, which proved upon investigation to have been captured from a British officer in the Revolution and which afterward been in service by an American in the struggle for independence and was later used in the War of 1812 and in two Indian wars, as well as finally in the Rebellion. Several nicks in its blade testify to its hard service in the Civil War. Following Dr. Frisbie's contribution to the evening's program, Vice President Alvin R. Bailey entertained the members with "An Ingolby's Legend" and "Mr. Dooley on Christian Science." Two new members were added to the chapter's ranks.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Globe Theatre—The wonderful successful opening of the Isle of Spice at the Globe Theatre on Monday night disclosed to Boston theatre-goers something new in the way of a musical extravaganza. Such a bevy of beautiful girls has never been seen upon the Boston stage. There were big girls and little girls, tall girls and short girls, fair girls and dark girls. Such a kaleidoscope of brilliant color has not been seen in many a day as Mr. Gus Sohke has evolved in his wonderful chorus, pictures, poses, and dances, the effect of which was not only novel, but beautiful in extreme. The radium ballet had to stop encores as that mysterious scientific fantasy only holds about a half hour. "Liquid sunshine." Then came "The Goo Goo Man" with "Toby Lyon" and "The Goo Goo Girls," and the audience went wild. The principals all made good, but it is a girl show, and the prettiest, daintiest bits of maidens who dance and sing like fairies are in the Isle of Spice.

Boston Music Hall—Standing out as one of the cleanest and, at the same time, most excruciatingly funny farces of the last ten years, the reason for the success of "Are You a Mason?" which has enjoyed four years of prosperity in America and which Julius Cahn will present at Boston Music Hall next week is not far to seek. Leo Dittichstein, who adapted the farce from a German original, has produced many a success in the past, but none which have made records equal to that of "Are You a Mason?" with its records of three hundred nights in London, one hundred in New York, a run at the Boston Museum, and four years of success upon the road. Julius Cahn has made an unusually elaborate production of this farce.

Majestic Theatre—The second week of the return engagement of the hilarious musical comedy, "Buster Brown," begins at the Majestic theatre on Monday night of next week. No attraction that has visited Boston during the present theatrical season has been any more popular with theatre-goers than this, and the management was fortunate in being able to secure such an attractive entertainment for a summer engagement. What "Buster Brown" lacks in plot is fully made up by the pleasing novelties that are introduced, and present indications point to a successful and profitable engagement during its run at the Majestic. Bright and lively in action, picturesquely costumed and presented by a company of excellence, "Buster Brown" is a veritable treat to anyone who wants to forget the cares and worries of everyday life. "Buster Brown" is just the kind of a show to take the children to, and they are bound to appreciate the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Tremont Theatre—On Monday night there was an addition to the cast of "Woodland," Henry W. Savage, a musical fantasy of the forest, now running at the Tremont, when Cheridah Simpson assumed the role of Prince Eagle. Miss Simpson will be remembered as the statuesque Piola, of "King Dodo," and also for her clever work this season as Henrietta Budd in the George Ade musical satire, "The Sultan of Sulu." The announcement that Miss Simpson will hereafter sing the role of Prince Eagle in "Woodland," the new Pixley and Lunders opera, will be pleasing to Boston theatre-goers, as she has made many friends in this city. She has an excellent voice, well trained for the somewhat difficult role, and makes a striking picture in boy's costumes. "Woodland" began its third week of the Boston engagement on Monday evening. So great has been the demand for seats that it has been decided to place seats on sale for four weeks in advance.

Keith's Theatre—The vaudeville section of the Keith show for the week of May 16 will be headed by those noted burlesquers, Jules and Ella Garrison, who have no equals on the variety stage. Other entertainers of note will be Willis and Hassan, acrobats and equilibrist; Harry Seebach, a wonderful bag pumper; Dick Brown and Mlle. Bartoli, comedy singers and dancers, and Wood brothers, flying ring performers, none of whom have appeared in Boston previously. The petite concert by the Padettes orchestra will continue, with an entire change of popular musical selections, including a solo by some member of the organization. The concert will begin at 1:45 and 7:30 p. m. approximately, with the vaudeville in between and following. This form of continuous entertainment has proven more popular than even the management hoped for, and will be continued throughout the summer months.

Literary Notes.

In his interpretation of Edwin A. Abbey's Holy Grail in the Boston Public Library the well-known art critic, Sylvester Baxter calls attention to an interesting fact, not before mentioned, in connection with the artist, it seems, had another subject in contemplation, and the idea of the Holy Grail grew into his mind and possessed itself of him in consequence of his researches in relation to the theme first suggested. His original purpose was to depict in a series of symbolic panels "The Sources of Modern Literature," just as Mr. Sargent had chosen "The Sources of Modern Religion" for his theme. While investigating the subject and searching for material, Mr. Abbey became more and more impressed with the legend of the Holy Grail as offering a motive peculiarly adapted to his ends. Another advantage of the legend was the fact that it was practically virgin ground for the artist. No other painter or illustrator—at least in any work of note—had made use of the rich material which it afforded. Mr. Abbey was therefore the first to choose the story of the Grail as the inspiration for an important decorative work. Published by Curtis and Cameron, Boston, $1.50.

Whist.

In a recent article it was suggested that a fair amount of textbook study, on the part of those players who have hitherto slighted this feature of their whist education, might prove advantageous in more ways than one.

Unfortunately almost every one of our authorities, in laying down certain rules for the guidance of the student, has followed so closely in the footsteps of his immediate predecessor that a certain sameness in the repetition has emphasized the main features of those rules and, in sinking other important points, has largely destroyed their usefulness.

Players who boast of never having read a book on whist have heard such rules quoted—not quoted literally, perhaps, but with a certain unconscious emphasis on some salient point and have been content to follow as guides such weatherbeaten but unreliable, because incomplete, signposts. Any one who has sought enlightenment upon the distance to the next crossroads knows how interminably "two miles" spin out in some regions. Hearsay or a poor guess may have been the sole basis of his informant's answer. To the whist player who is willing to depend upon such rules and familiar sayings of a hearsay character, the road to success is likely to prove tediously long.

"Third hand high" does not mean third hand king when queen and knave are also held, and yet this mistake is surprisingly common. In the text book a carefully worded, qualifying phrase tells third in hand to play the lowest of a sequence, but the rule has been gradually worn down to three words with which our paragraph opens, by the time it reaches the curriculum of many players.

"Leading through the strong, up to the weak," is another phrase which seems to appeal to many players, if we may judge from the way in which it is made to do duty when the query is raised regarding the reason for a continuation of opponent's suit. There is no play which requires more careful consideration, in the writer's opinion, than that involved in taking up the lead of opponent's suit, unless it is the continuation of opponent's trump lead.

"Do not force your partner when weak in trumps" is another rule to which the exceptions are many. To force one's partner when strong in trumps may be advisable under certain conditions, but expert players are slow to avail themselves of this privilege.

"Force the strong trump hand; someone has said. How many tricks have been lost by following this advice, when suiting-out tactics should have been in order?

The above are some of the rules which require painstaking study. Like several others of a similar character, all qualifying phrases embodied in the rule deserve strict attention. Moreover, it is highly important in applying any rule to be sure it fits the case in hand.

Diamonds queen turned West. Leader North.

North-South 8, East-West 5.

Trick No. 1. South concluded to permit East to hold the trick, and await developments.

Trick No. 2. East, placing the ace of spades with West, went to his singleton trump at once. He found his partner very strong in trumps, but was disappointed in the final outcome.

Tricks Nos. 6 and 7. West continued trumps at every opportunity. He also was laboring under a mistake, placing the ace of spades with East. East could have saved one trick by retaining one guard to his king of clubs, but held to his original intentions and played for the spade suit to the last.

When the risk "is worth the candle" why not take it, as did West in the illustration which follows:

Diamond deuce turned West. Leader North.

North-South 1, East-West 12.

Trick No. 2. As he was not likely to lose more than one trick by the play, and might gain several tricks, West led the trump on the chance that he might "go down the line" with his suit.

Trick No. 3 South could have saved a least two tricks by starting his strong heart suit.

Trick No. 6. East held the necessary spade to lead, and the remainder of the play was largely a case of discards.

NEWTON.

[Stanwood Cobb in National Magazine.] O Newton, who thy charms can fitly tell! Thy shaded streets, thy fair houses loved so well;

Thy residential heights by art enhanced; Thy simpler spots where Nature lies entranced;

Thy ponds that bask beneath the summer heat And ring in winter from the skaters' feet;

Thy river where the summer idly floats In gay canoes and sober-colored boats—

O place of pleasure noted far and wide, Where is thine equal, charming Riverside?"

So far has loving Nature done her share To make the Garden City passing fair That she has seemed to justify signifi-

"Herein no busy factory wheels shall ply, No dust-blown mart this charming site shall hold,

Its people be of no inferior mould." And so the thirteen Newtons, charming all,

Laid out and grown to plan symmetrical. Have come to be the home of those who take Culture for theirs and live for culture's sake.

O may no footprints of a ruder race Her paths of plenty and of peace deface. Let others have their palaces and domes, May Newton stay the city of fair homes.

Personal Abuse out of Date.

As might be expected, the trusts and all their organs and agencies are doing all they can to discredit Mr. Hearst as a presidential candidate.

They say he liked the ladies in his salad days. Maybe so, maybe so. The same charge was made against Grover Cleveland whose friends murmured something about "the indiscretions of youth" in explanation of events alleged to have taken place when Grover was forty-odd years old.

And I never was able to figure out in my own mind whether Grover's triumphant election was due to the prevalence of what one might call a fellow-feeling or to a resentment against the offering of personal charges in a campaign of national political issues. Anyway this talk about "the unspeakable Hearst" does the talkers more harm than it does Hearst. It stamps them either venomous or "sissy."

From "The Rising Tide of Presidential Year" by Frank Putnam in National Magazine for May.

Street Railway Desires Double Track on Washington St.

A Large Amount of Sewer Work Authorized and Routine Business Transacted.

On Monday evening the board met at 7:45 o'clock. Present, President Saltonstall, Aldermen Baker, Barber, Boren, Brown, Cabot, Carter, Day, Dennison, Easign, Ellis, Hunt, Johnson, Mellen, Palmer, Sweeney, Webster, Weston and White.

HEARINGS.

At 7:45 a hearing was opened upon taking land for a sewer in Rustic street. No one appeared and the hearing was closed.

At the hearing on the construction of a concrete sidewalk in Elmhurst road under the betterment act, a letter was read in remonstrance from Charlotte A. Blake.

Mr. James W. French. The sidewalk here is of gravel, and during the last winter has not been shoveled. It has been almost impassable all winter. The petition is signed by every resident on the street.

The hearing was then closed.

At 8 o'clock the hearing was opened on the petition of the Newton Street Railway Co to double track Washington street between Auburn street and Commonwealth avenue.

Hon. S. L. Powers represented the petitioners, and General Manager M. C. Brush was the first speaker.

Mr. Brush. The Company now has a double track from Nonantum Square to Washington street bridge and a single track beyond. The line is not straight and it is difficult to operate with safety and at the same time satisfy the travelling public. Just beyond Auburn street there is a sharp curve and the cars now come to a dead stop at this point. A double track would allow the road to be operated on schedule time, and as the motorman can see the entire length of single track between Lincoln Park and Auburn street, accidents could be avoided and better and quicker service given than at present. The distance is 2680 feet, the road is some 49 feet wide and a centre location would give a roadway each side of 15 feet. It is possible that a small length of the street may need widening near Auburn street.

William H. Mague. I decidedly object to a double track. The 15 foot roadway does not allow for sidewalks which will reduce the driving surface to 7 feet. I hope your board will not grant any more franchises unless the streets are widened. If the curve near Auburn street is objectionable, the street should be straightened and widened. Its condition nearer West Newton is a disgrace to the city. The old elm which takes up about 15 feet is dangerous. I have no objection to the double track provided the street is straightened and widened from the bridge to Commonwealth avenue.

Dr. N. Emmons Paine. I am in favor of two tracks as against one track, but only in case the additional track is placed beside the present rails and not moved into the centre of the street. The street should be widened to 100 feet to Auburn street and I agree with Mr. Mague that the remainder to West Newton is in wretched condition.

W. H. Mague. I should decidedly object to a double track on a side location as suggested by Dr. Paine.

Hon. S. L. Powers. Four years ago, the last time I appeared before your board, there was a different view entirely of street railways than now. Then every Company not only wished to protect itself, but endeavored to invade the territory of each other. Many inducements were offered for the locations and boulevards, parkways and even a new City Hall might have been included in the conditions of location. The last Railroad Commission report shows 65 roads which paid no dividends last year, 44 which paid from 1 to 10 per cent. and 5 of which did not earn the dividends paid. The 65 roads paying no dividends had a deficit of over a million dollars. The year previous, 24 companies paid no dividends and had a deficit of over $400,000. Outside of Boston the street railway companies earn 4 per cent. There has been a marvellous growth in street railways during the last 14 years carrying an investment of $1,220,000,000 and building 2700 miles of track. Of the $68,000,000 capital, sixty millions is owned by Massachusetts people and pays $1,750,000 annually in taxes. The public are therefore a partner in these enterprises and receives one third of the gross receipts. In Newton, 7 per cent. is paid to the city and 11 per cent. to the stockholders of the gross earnings. This system with 145 miles of track nearly touches Worcester on the west, puts its cars into Lowell on the north and runs three lines into Boston. The good lines in its system have to carry the bad lines and in one instance today there is a very large deficit which the railroad commission is now considering. This particular case only covers a short piece of track. A widening to 100 feet must be paid for by either the city or the company. The company cannot afford such a burden. They have already declined to consider a widening near this location which would cost some $30,000. Street railways have gone forward faster than they ought and further conditions cannot be placed upon them. This system is going to serve the public and will be a successful system and it ought in time to be able to earn 6 per cent. on its invested capital. The time has come when a more generous treatment must be accorded this class of corporations. Great economy must and is being practised in its management and if left alone they will work out a success to themselves and to the public. Mr. Mague's criticism of the condition of Washington street is a reflection on the board and not on the company. You ought to help the road to avoid the danger and to make its operation more uniform.

The hearing was closed.

They were all selected with great care, have been carefully blighted, handled and driven regularly, so that they are fitted for use in the city and country. Beautifully matched coach and family pairs, cobs, single drivers and saddlers, all at reasonable prices. Why not buy of a thoroughly responsible firm who have been in business for more than 20 years, and who can show a better list of regular customers and references than any dealers in New England. Our policy is, where we sell a horse and it does not give perfect satisfaction, to take it back and give another equally as good, without any additional charge. We can give the very best references. BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

Editorial writers in Boston who presume to comment and criticize legislators and legislation, would do well to exercise their legs as well as their pens occasionally, and climb Beacon Hill and look on from a vantage ground of more value than an editorial sanctum, or even a conversation with some bright up-to-date reporter.

There are certain advantages to be gained by writers upon current events in touching elbows with the live forces formulating legislation and enacting laws. About a year ago an event took place at the State House which was called the Raymond investigation, and which attracted widespread attention. During the progress of that so-called investigation, numerous editorials were delivered in several papers in Boston that displayed about as much familiarity with the matter as an ordinary (they are all ordinary) Boston alderman does about the science of government. The editorials were the best that could be written by the writers under the circumstances. They were writing about matters of which they knew nothing more than the average reader of the paper. It is not unusual for editors to be space writers pure and simple, and that fact is never better demonstrated than when Boston editors write upon legislation. So long as the readers confine themselves to the reports of the bright young men who do more for their wages than many legislators do for theirs, the readers may keep up with the procession, but sometimes when they drift off into editorials a column long upon a given subject in legislation, the amount of real information and valuable comment to be derived therefrom would bear about the same relation to the subject as would a dollar in the hands of a green speculator in State Street buying copper stocks.

A very striking exception to this estimate of legislative editorials was observed recently in the publication of a long article on the editorial page of a leading Boston paper, upon an Insurance Bill then in Committee. A remarkable familiarity with the subject, even in its most intricate details, was noticeable, and a surprising acquaintance with the situation was evident. Considerable interest was shown in the appearance of an editorial so lucid and intelligent on a matter of legislation, until it was learned that the said editorial was written by an Insurance man, who was in the insurance business, and had attended the hearings before the Committee.

From a certain standpoint, of course there is an opportunity to criticize such editorial writing as that mentioned, but it has at least the commendable feature of having been written by a man who knew what he was writing about. In that sense, the public is the gainer, for the average reader knows little and cares less who the editorial writer is, as long as he writes interestingly and intelligently of the matters discussed. Questions of importance and interest are daily being considered at the State House during a session of the legislature, and they should be given to the public in some strong, enlightening editorials which would aid the public mind in coming to intelligent conclusions, yet the papers seldom notice these matters other than in the news column.

Judge Long, one of the counsel in the Westfield-Springfield water case, cried out as he noticed Lawyer Brooks endeavoring to interfere with his argument: "Oh, keep cool, keep cool." Judge Long was in the midst of one of his most fervid and excited passages when he cautioned Mr. Brooks, and of course everybody laughed.

The Special Commission on Employers and Employees cost the state ten thousand dollars, and yet not a single piece of legislation has been the result. Special Commissions are about as expensive as legislative junkets, and about as worthless.

Governor Bates and counsel went to the Concord Reformatory last week, but since they went there, it is not observed that they have in the least reformed.

"Honest John Quinn" in a speech in the House last week, caused a laugh of incredulity from one end of the chamber to the other, by exclaiming, "The members of the legislature are not politicians, they are statesmen."

A member of the Senate in remarking the other day upon the probability of a bill in which he was interested getting through the legislature, said: "Don't mention that the Governor endorses it, that would kill it."

The stars in their courses seem to favor a member of the present Senate for the President of the Senate next winter.

The legislature has a quorum, but it is not often present in the House of Representatives these days.

Many members excel in something.

One member commands the respect of his fellows to an unusual degree.

Cape Cod is going to be torn up again by a canal—perhaps.

Communication.

The Automobile craze is on.

The millionaire sports are taking it in, and pushing this innocent and useful machine for all it's worth no matter who, or how many it slaughters. In fact the fastest racers look more like torpedo boats than conveyances, and our roads are becoming holy terrors to riders in other vehicles, bicyclists and pedestrians. How ridiculous these heavy Tomcocks look marked by humans clad from head to foot in Divers armor or bathing suits trying to contribute to the happiness of their lady passengers whose millinery, dress goods and disheveled hair and ribbons are flying in the air as if struck by a raging cyclone. That may be fun for the reckless but Good Lord deliver us from such barbarous fanaticism. It's the same sort of craze that infested bicycling three or four years ago. The heedless and brainless elements of our population who could put down a dollar, and install themselves on wheels bought on the dollar a month plan became reckless scorchers and nuisances and their busted wheels down cellars soon put them out of business with their fun ended. That ushered in the return of an era of safety for the millions who did not ride wheels. Consequently bicycle riders have almost disappeared from our roads. But legitimate riding is soon to be in vogue and scorching has had its day. That's just exactly what we hope will happen to the pestiferous racing and record breaking steam and gasoline ploughing of our fine roads by "Lightning Conductors," and their several tonned tonneaus. These sudden rich and transitory passengers of these torpedo machines will run their rackets and then the laws of nature will subside with plenty of old junk left as reminders of their childish folly, in their horseless stables with plenty of inability to get new ones. Such dare-devilism caters to no legitimate fancy or taste, but is born of fanatical desire to abuse the get there spirit. It is the acme of childish heedlessness in defiance of the simple modesty of life and challenges outsiders with the silly "I've got it bad! You can't get it! So get off the earth or you'll get it in the neck and you can't get our number either! All I hope is that our cemeteries and insane asylums may not be crowded with the victims before that reasonable era returns.

Let me add the following quoted moralization.

Mr. Philip Tissie says "the direction of an automobile bearing precious lives depends on the chauffeur and not on the mechanic. The latter knows how to take the thing to pieces but only the chauffeur has the power of life and death according as his brain and hand if his cerebration and musculature are well balanced and act together." He sums it up right in the following thesis. "We walk with our muscles, run with our lungs, sprint with our heart, resist with our stomach and get there with our brains." I trust these reckless chauffeurs will get somewhere else than on our necks, with their reckless mania.

Mrs. Edwin D. Mead, the well known lecturer, will speak upon the coming peace conference to be held in Boston next October.

Mr. Leach, editor of "Our Dumb Animals," gave an interesting address on caring for animals at the Junior Endeavor meeting at Eliot church last Sunday afternoon.

A missionary service is in preparation to be given at the Auburndale Congregational church, Sunday evening, June 5th in charge of the Woman's Board of Missions Auxiliary. Mrs. Bray of Stoughton will give a stereopticon lecture on "People and Places in China."

TELEPHONE NO. 77-3.

The GRAPHIC is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all News-stands in the Newton, and at the South Union Station, Boston.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 25 cents per line in the reading matter, or $1.00 per line in the advertising columns.

From the Boston papers, one gathers the impression that a Judge Eumois has arrived in Newton and the many and flourishing forms of vice which have apparently been so prominent as to be plainly seen by the Boston press, will soon be laid low. Druggists, expressmen, painters, tobaccoists and gay young women are under surveillance according to the Boston papers, and we await with patience the next bulletin which will probably include our school teachers and clergymen.

The thought that our beautiful city is the scene of such wickedness must shock our good people from the "Saints Rest" of Auburndale to the rural simplicity of Chestnut Hill, and will cause shivers of anxiety to chase up and down the spines of our elect. The idea of Newton, the home of the Baptist Theological Institution, of Lasell and other seats of culture, being a "wide open" town, is so astounding that our leading citizens, after reading the truthful, non-sensational Boston press, have gone about with grave faces and sinking hearts.

But the lynx eyed Boston reporter is still among us. He is busily engaged in exposing the whitened bones of our civic life and ferreting out the horrid tendencies of our degenerate population.

With bated breath we tremblingly await the results of his investigations of the criminal life of "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker."

The Graphic has never believed that the imposition of street widenings and boulevard construction in the grant of street railway locations was in the line of the best policy. It has often pointed out that where these matters are undertaken by street railway companies, the people eventually pay the bills, and moreover give the company a very tangible grip on permanent rights to the location in such particular street. It is far wiser to pay for these improvements, where necessary, directly through the city taxes, and have a clear title to the resulting benefits, than to pay for it indirectly through the earnings of the street railway company with its subsequent lien.

We learn that the railroad commission will soon reach a decision in the Newton transfer question.

A Brilliant Reception.

Surrounded with the beautiful floral gifts from many friends, Miss F. Lydia Dennison, the daughter of Alderman and Mrs. Charles S. Dennison, made her debut into society yesterday afternoon at one of the most brilliant receptions of the season.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennison on Kirkstall road, Newtonville, was adorned with masses of apple blossoms and asparagus vine, and the conservatory, where Miss Dennison and Mrs. Dennison received was fairly filled with flowers of every hue. Miss Dennison looked charming in a gown of white lace with pearl and sapphire ornaments and with apple blossoms and Mrs. Dennison wore a beautiful dress of champagne crepe, with diamonds.

Over five hundred guests were present from the Newtons and adjoining towns during the receiving hours from four to six o'clock.

These ladies and misses assisted at the tables: Mesdames W. H. Lucas, W. H. Cary, F. W. Pray, K. Taylor, Theodore Jones, John Wells, Chas. H. Breck, J. T. Lodge, E. E. Hopkins, C. W. Leonard, G. W. Brown, J. L. Richards, W. J. Follett, S. L. Powers, W. H. Howe, H. C. French, E. N. Wright, F. L. Nagle, E. D. Van Tassel, W. F. Kimball, W. O. Kyle, G. F. Wadleigh, W. H. Allen, F. S. Sherman, C. C. Briggs, Jr., E. S. Buffum and Misses Adams, Helen Hopkins, Madeline Buffum, Ethel Jaynes, Josephine Talbot, Constance Richardson, Mary Upham, Helen Freeman, Madge Lovell, Margaret Whidden, Ruth Hines, Olivia Dennison, Gertrude Bement, Mary Elder, Josephine Sherwood, Hester Brady and Dorothy and Sallie Lucas.

Daggett's orchestra furnished music during the afternoon. Miss Dennison entertained the young ladies who assisted her with an informal dance last evening.

For New Organ.

Next Thursday evening the doors of the Newton Centre Baptist church will be thrown open in welcome to all who may desire to hear the delightful program which has been prepared by a chorus of fifty voices from the "Singers" under the direction of Mr. Burdett.

The chorus will be assisted by Mrs. Kileski Bradbury, Mr. Herbert A. Thayer and Mr. A. B. Hitchcock.

Mr. Emery will preside at the organ and Mr. Fairbanks at the piano.

The numbers will include Rheinberger's Night, The Recognition of Land by Grieg, King All Glorious by Baraby, selections from the Oratorio of Elijah and other gems from the best composers.

An evening of rare pleasure is assured and should be crowned with financial success.

In accordance with a custom of the church, seats will be free, but it is intended that money shall be raised and to this end a collection will be taken. The proceeds will be presented to the First Church and applied to the fund for purchasing an organ for the new house of worship now nearing completion.

Cards of admission limited to the seating capacity of the church, will be issued after Monday morning May 23rd. Written applications specifying the number of cards wanted, should be sent to Mr. H. J. Ide, Sec'y, and an addressed stamped envelope in which the cards can be mailed, should be enclosed. On account of the limited seating capacity, the request is earnestly made that applications be limited to the number which will be absolutely used.

The doors will be opened from 7:25 to 7:45 to those who have cards of admission. After 7:45 no cards will be required. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mr. J. M. Quimby of 322 Franklin street, Newton, formerly of the firm of Doe, Hunnewell and Co., Boston, who is now associated with the Lewis F. Perry and Whitney Co., 8 Bosworth street, Boston, will be pleased to furnish estimates on outside and inside painting, wall papers, carpets, rugs, draperies, furniture, etc. He can be reached by mail or telephone, either 6640 Main or 158-4 Newton.

Real Estate.

It is announced through the agency of Edward T. Harrington and Co., that the well-known Cook estate in Waltham street, West Newton, has been sold. This property, which consists of a ten-room house, a very large stable and about seven acres of land, well stocked with a choice variety of fruit and very large shade trees, has been for many years one of the most attractive estates in the suburbs of Boston. At one time it was the residence of the late Mr. Macular, of Macular, Parker Company, of Boston, and later of George Cook, president of the Hallett and Davis Piano Company. The new owner has purchased for a residence, and will thoroughly renovate the house and restore the former beauty of the estate. The assessed valuation is about $17,000. It is gratifying to the Newton public that the Messrs. Harrington and Co. have succeeded in disposing of these large estates to buyers who will preserve the attractions of this section of the Garden City. The estate is nearly opposite the Shattuck place, just sold by the above firm to George E. Eager, and is the fifth important sale they have made in this vicinity within a few months. The lowest priced place was assessed for $12,000, and the highest priced for $50,000.

Camp Kineo for Boys.

After about 10 years experience in summer camps for boys, F. Dana Sears of Hyde Park, Mass., will reopen July 1st, his camp on Long Lake, Harrison, Me., in the midst of New England's most charming scenery. Mt. Washington is plainly visible from the camp, as is Mt. Pleasant, which is 12 miles distant. The camp grounds cover 15 acres, is situated on high ground, in a grove of pines; thus having good drainage and a pleasant outlook. The adjacent country is dotted with lakes and mountains, presenting every variety of scenery and a pleasant field for excursions. This region is 300 feet above sea level and is commended for its healthful climate. Only boys of the best moral character and good habits, between 10 and 18 years, will be received. A Christian college man, to every seven boys, will aim to furnish out door life in the purest way and among the strongest and noblest boy companions. The camp can be reached in two ways from Portland, Me.: via the Maine Central R. R. to Sebago Lake station, thence by steamer across Sebago and Long Lake, a delightful excursion of 30 miles; or from Portland, take the Maine Central and Bridgton and Saco R. R., to Harrison, Me. Mr. Sears is a graduate of Dartmouth college, and a professor of mathematics in Stetson University, Deland, Fla. G. H. Senauer, also a Dartmouth graduate, and at present headmaster of Emerson Institute, the famous boys' school of Washington, D. C., and of many years camp experience, will be assistant manager. Any boy, really interested, can secure an illustrated booklet (see cut in another column) of F. D. Sears, 59 Lincoln street, Boston, Mass. Best of references furnished.

OBNOXIOUS TRANSFERENCE

I think our genial editor does not have occasion to go to Brookline in all its parts, or Huntington Avenue and its contiguous streets, with Symphony and other halls, and churches. I think his generous nature would be as often tempted from its ordinary placidity by heat and steam under the collar at the Oak Square make shift as often as he attempted to reach those localities. After years of effort to obtain direct communication with these localities by the many who use them it is intensely provoking to see this slow to move gigantic corporation balled in this the only way to do it effort to establish this direct line. It simply teases and frets the many who desire to go in those directions. Streets and Road and Square are for public use and it is safe to assert that more people are inconvenienced by the Elevated Passenger Rail Road Cars in a year than are inconvenienced by a partially crowded square and more people are inconvenienced by this little dicta than by the square at odd times crowded by cars delayed en route to and from Boston that happen to reach the square together at illoportune times day or night. The Bowdoin Square wants of Newton people are nothing in comparison with the Brookline wants. So long as the street rail roads do what's right by the people, by all means be liberal with the granting them privileges, to do that thing and let us not be too free in trying to trammel their efforts to accommodate all. Their's my sentiments. W. H. P.

—The Big Bell of Burma. One of the sights of the Shive Dagon pagoda in Burma is a gigantic bell of bronze, weighing forty-two and a quarter tons and said to be the third largest bell in the world, the largest being in Moscow and the next largest in Mingin, also in Burma. After conquering Burma the British undertook to carry the great Rangun bell to Calcutta as a trophy, but dropped it overboard in the Rangun river, where it defied all the efforts of the engineers to raise it. Some years later the Burmese, who had not ceased to mourn its loss, begged to be allowed to recover it. Their petition was granted, and by attaching to it an incredible number of bamboo floats the unwieldy mass of metal was finally lifted from its muddy bed and triumphantly restored to its place.

—Bismarck's Regrets. Shortly after 1870 Bismarck was complaining that life had brought him no happiness or love. “But,” said a friend, “you have made a great nation happy.” “Yes,” replied the prince, “but many people unhappy. But for me three great wars would not have been waged, 80,000 men would not have perished, and parents, brothers, sisters, widows, would not now be mourning. That I have to settle with God. But I have had little or no pleasure from what I have done; on the contrary, much vexation, anxiety and toil.”—London News.

—Sound of the Human Voice. No man knows the sound of his own voice. He hears himself through two channels—the outer ear and the eustachian tube. He hears his friend through the ear only; hence he would rather listen to himself than to his friend. Try your voice in a gramophone. At first you will not recognize it, but you will immediately identify that of your friend.—New York Press.

—The Dear Friends. Mabel—What a perfectly exquisite new bonnet, dearest? Ethel—Oh, I'm so glad you like it. I was so afraid you wouldn't. Are you sure you like it? Mabel—Sure? Oh, perfectly. I always did adore that shape. Why, I had three just like it—when it was in fashion.

—Not Yet. “Henry,” whispered the bride of two hours, “you don't regret marrying me even yet?” “No, darling,” replied Henry, “not even yet.” The train sped on, and she was happy for another five minutes.

—Superfluities. Teacher—Thomas, mention a few of the proofs that the earth is round, like an orange. Tommy Tucker—I don't know we had to have any proofs, ma'am. I thought everybody admitted it.—Chicago Tribune.

—On the Menu. Cannibal King—That missionary made an awful fuss, didn't he? Head Chief—Terrible, sir. His struggles were frightful. Cannibal King—Well, serve him as a piece de resistance.—Trove Topics.

—Honest. “Do you think him an honest statesman?” “Sure. I've known him to buy thousands of votes and pay for every one of them.”—Detroit Free Press.

—Interested. “Do you admire Beethoven's works?” “I never visited ‘em,” answered Mr. Cumrox absently. “What does he manufacture?”—Washington Star.

Improvement Society.

As the result of a local agitation to make a park out of the triangular tract of land bounded by Walnut, Watertown streets and Lowell avenue in Newtonville, a mass meeting was held in the Horace Mann school Tuesday evening, and the Newtonville Improvement Society was born.

Nearly a hundred people were present and Rev. Dr. O. S. Davis, the presiding officer made a graceful and fitting address upon the advisability of securing the land in question for public uses. As a result of suggestions made by him, it was unanimously decided to form an Improvement Association and these officers were elected: President, Rev. O. S. Davis; vice president, Winfield S. Slocum; treasurer, George W. Auryansee; secretary, Albert P. Carter; executive committee, W. H. Allen, C. F. Avery, F. L. Nagle, C. D. Cabot and E. P. Hatch. Remarks were made by W. S. Slocum, J. B. SHALL WOMEN VOTE?

(From the New Haven Register.)

John D. Long of Massachusetts is a man who elucidates whatever he considers. It is this characteristic which has made him such a powerful person publicly in his state, and which today attaches to his judgment with regard to Mr. Roosevelt large significance. He has been the governor of his people, a member of Congress and a cabinet officer during a trying period, and has thus accumulated a lot of evidence with regard to the suffrage question which stands him in good stead. Convincing as now, in the consideration of the question of extending the right of suffrage to woman. Whatever one's opinion of this subject, we can all admit that Mr. Long's attitude must be helpful to the side he advocates.

It will strike the country at large as odd that Mr. Long should be found upon the side of extending the suffrage to the women, but what makes his position unique among those who agree with him is the argument which he made before the legislative committee of Massachusetts, having a resolution under consideration which provides that women may vote for city and town officers. If we are not mistaken the women of that Commonwealth already have the right to vote in school elections, as they have here in the State of Connecticut, and if we are not further mistaken the percentage of those who have taken advantage of the privilege is not larger there than here, but this fact in no way affects the judgment of Mr. Long with regard to the fundamental right which he believes the women should have, in common with the men, to show, if they please, in political elections. The legal right to vote has nothing to do in his estimation with the failure of its possessor to exercise that right. The law does not take away from a man his right to vote because he neglects that right, nor does it compel a male citizen to acquire the right of suffrage. There are residents of New Haven, who were born here and who own property who have never been made voters. The same measure Mr. Long applies to the demand of the women to be made voters and eliminates entirely the question of the probability of their exercising the privilege. It all turns, in his judgment, upon their equal rights with men in the matter of voting, and has no more to do with what they would do with that right than it has to do with what men do with the same right.

Nor is Mr. Long moved in the slightest degree by the familiar made argument that the women should not be permitted to vote because it involves an infringement on the delicacy of their lives. He recites an experience in his own life which disposes of this sentimental objection. He has relatives, daughters among them, who live in Colorado, where the right of suffrage is extended to women in all elections. He says: "I was in Colorado, and saw an election there. My daughters and their grandmothers voted. I watched them, and I saw the process; the whole argument about contamination vanished utterly into thin air. The election in that Colorado city was as orderly as in Hingham or in any ward of Boston. I have a tender feeling toward my own; I should object to any infringement on the delicacy of their lives; but they were not put to half so much notoriety or exposure as they would have been on a street car or at a concert, or in getting into this room. My daughter who is now working as a physician in the New York sun, comes in contact with the saddest elements of a great city. The exposure in Colorado Springs was nothing to the exposure which she faces now, and of which I am very proud." Mr. Long might have gone on still further and told the committee that whatever exposure or notoriety is imposed upon women as a result of their voting proceeds entirely from the novelty of their position at the outset and has nothing to do with the act itself. When society became accustomed to the sight of women voting, it would pay no more attention to it than it does now to the independence experienced by them in other habits of life. They mingle as freely among men on the streets as they would ever be compelled to do at the polls, where, as elsewhere, it would be found that they would take care of themselves.

Another phase touched upon by Mr. Long is of a suggestive character. Having met the point that the women, speaking of them as a body, do not want to vote, with the counter point that not all the men want to vote and have to be drummed up "to vote even in exciting elections," he proceeded with his argument to this effect: "The opposition to woman suffrage is represented here and elsewhere by many women of high character and purpose. I may say that the very ability with which they argue their side is perhaps the best argument in favor of the right. Why, in the name of common sense, should they not have the right to express by a vote the opinions they so clearly hold, and express in debate? May I not say another thing of them. They are the same women who in social life are doing all sorts of good deeds and exerting good influence in bettering social conditions, in charity, in reform, in the schools, and every other line of life. They are awake to the importance of improving all ideas and standards for young women. They realize the danger of unreflected and unindirected leisure. They regret the rumors that are now a-days of demoralization in fashionable and rich society. Is it not possible that something might be done to stay any tendency in the circles of such society to masculine vices by infusing into them an opportunity for the exercise of some of the masculine virtues and useful activities? Would not a woman's club for playing bridge whilst maintaining a higher and equally entertaining occupation in being put to the personal and public responsibility of not only seeing that good measures are made the subject of legislation, but it actually voting for them.

There is nothing that demoralizes and depraves more than idleness; and there is nothing that lifts an enfranchised and enlarges like participation in things that are of vital importance. A share in the direct responsibility for the public welfare and the municipal and other laws which affect it is the best education."

We have always taken the view that in the end the right of suffrage would be extended to women as property rights have been, but preceding the grant would be a long and desultory controversy turning principally upon the thoroughly false notion that there is an indecency in a woman casting a ballot. This is not alone a man's view, for many women share in it, but it is impressive only in so far as woman's view makes it so. As for the fearfulness of men, it is a trifle absurd in view of the fact that they are not over sensitive in the matter of delicacy where women are even more personally concerned than they would be as voters. The question should be common consent be reduced to one of right, and all emotional and sentimental considerations should be eliminated. If it is right to grant universal suffrage it should be granted as a matter of high principle, and whether the women want it, or neglect it if given, is of no consequence so far as the consistent attitude of the Government is concerned. Mr. Long has done a public service in contributing to this rational understanding of the subject.

Letter to Henry A. Spear, Newton Highlands.

Dear Sir: Here's a bully one. Mr. Dooley (not of Chicago), painter, Lancaster, N. H., got the job of painting the Episcopal parsonage. He was used to a paint, as pure as Devoe, but weak and short-measure—he didn't know it was weak or short-measure. Dooley surveyed the job, and said it would take 20 gallons.

Mr. L. F. Moore, our agent, offered to give 10 gallons Devoe. Accepted of course.

Eleven gallons did it: the 10 plus one.

Mr. Moore isn't painting parsonages on shares this year!

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.

The following extract from a "Report on a visit to Educational Institutions in the United States" by W. C. Fletcher, M. A., Head Master of the Liverpool Institute Boys' School and what is popularly known as the Mosely Commission, will be of interest to our readers.

The difficulty referred to in the opening paragraph relates to the trouble which American educationists experience in co-ordinating the work of grammar and high schools.

The extract is as follows: "At Newton (Mass.) an almost ideal solution of the difficulty had been found. Some ten years ago the Principal of the High School and the Superintendent of Education (chiefly concerned with the elementary schools) arrived independently at the conclusion that reform was necessary. It was decided to introduce Latin into the upper grades of the elementary school. Those teachers who were likely to do well and who had some little Latin were invited to go to the High School Latin teachers to refresh and improve their knowledge and to get some idea of exactly what it was desirable that they should teach. (By degrees as new teachers were wanted, men specially fitted were chosen). The two sets of teachers visit one another's classes for mutual observation and criticism. A formal conference is held every year, in which the two sets of teachers meet. Every quarter a report is sent to each elementary school of the performance in the High School of its old pupils.

The results of this are beneficial all round.

1. Boys are much more advanced on entering the High School—they can begin Caesar straight away.

2. The introduction of the harder work and of high school methods has raised the standard of the elementary school—not merely in the upper grades, doing the new work, but throughout by a steady filtering downward of its influence.

3. The barriers between the two sets of teachers are broken down—necessary intercourse brings friendship. The success of the system in Latin has led to its use for other subjects—algebra and English.

It should be noticed that only those children, in the grades who intend to go on to the High School take Latin. Conditions at Newton are unusually favorable, and it does not follow that all that is done there could be done elsewhere, but it is, I believe, along such lines as these that the solution of the difficulty may be most hopefully looked for.

It will be noticed that here the influence of the high school on the lower schools is not unlike that of a university on the high school under the accrediting system.

Enormous Crowds Visiting St. Louis—Perfect Accommodations. Interesting Filipinos

It is about two weeks since the opening of the St. Louis Exposition, and the admirable accommodations furnished by St. Louis reflect great praise upon the city. The Exposition is all that has been claimed for it. In fact, it is much more than the imagination can possibly conceive. The perfection and completion of the exhibits speak well for the Exposition managers. The Philippine exhibit attracts crowds daily. The natives appear entirely oblivious of the gaping multitudes. They chatter and play and work just as in their native islands. The American Indians, numbering over sixty-one tribes, are another interesting exhibit on the famous "Pike." This section of the Exposition is marvelous. It far surpasses anything of the kind ever before attempted. This is an excellent month to visit St. Louis, and on the Boston and Maine route you can stop at Niagara Falls. You can also journey via Montreal and Niagara Falls; and through cars from Boston carry you right outside the Exposition gate into the new Wabash Station. For full information describing the Exposition and the rates and routes, send to the Boston and Maine Passenger Department, Boston, for their beautiful descriptive booklet on the Exposition. It will be mailed to any address free.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Tremont Theatre—"Woodland," the new Pixley and Lunders' forest fantasy now running at the Tremont, began its fourth week last Monday night. This opera is such a novelty, and there are so many interesting features, that its success was assured from the opening night. From the time the curtain goes up to the music of the chorus of Owls, until the finale of the last act, there are dozens of pretty songs and dances, and comedians enough to keep laughter going steadily. Mr. Pixley, who wrote the book and lyrics, has added many new scenes and lines since the opening night. Of all the productions that have been made by Mr. Savage, "Woodland" has undoubtedly the handsomest chorus. The costumes are the suggestions of bird characters represented, and are beautiful in the extreme. Monday night, May 23, there will be a benefit performance for A. M. Sheehan, the popular business manager of the Tremont Theatre.

Keith's Theatre—There will be a host of amusing entertainment in the Keith show for the week of May 23 that will appeal to old and young, for the program is one of the best assortments of vaudeville booked this season. It includes such well known people as New Monroes, W. Mack, and Nellie Lawrence, in a new comedy sketch, "The Two Senators," the Four Wilsons, in a wonderful acrobatic and flying ring specialty; Tenbrooke and Lambert, in a character comedy sketch; George C. Davis, the legitimate successor of the lamented J. W. Kelly; Sisters DeVan, in a marvelous perch act, and the noted Liverpool Choir of "Way Down East," a mixed quartet of splendid singers.

For the special amusement of the juveniles Prof. Kreisel, with his troupe of dogs, monkeys and cats, has been engaged. The Padettes will continue with an entire change of program, but the hours for their appearance, 1:45 and 7:30 p. m. remain the same.

Majestic Theatre—"Buster Brown" Melville B. Raymond's splendid musical production, which has been drawing big crowds to the Majestic Theatre, will continue to occupy the stage at that house. To say that Mr. Raymond struck a "rich find" in his diminutive star Gabriel, and the vehicle that he has provided him with, would be putting it mildly, for no better series of stage pictures, clean, wholesome comedy and inspiring musical numbers have been presented in this city in many days than those that are being offered at the Majestic Theatre. No matter how wide the range of fancy or how fastidious the audience may be that witness this production, it is safe to say that the verdict is always one of praise of the highest order. Ladies and children will avoid the crowd by attending the matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Globe Theatre—The first week of the Isle of Spice, the exquisite musical extravaganza at the Globe, was the most successful ever known at that theatre. Not even the all star cast of Weber and Fields, played to as many people during any one week as did the blithesome company which is singing and dancing into the favor of Boston theatre-goers just now, under the "gingery" cognomen of Isle of Spice. It is the exquisite opinion that the chorus work is quite the best ever seen in the city. In "Peggy Brady," one of the song hits of the piece, the stage is an ever changing picture, and Miss Leigh is obliged to sing the song again and again. The radium ballet is quite as beautiful as it is mysterious and each night evokes encore after encore.

Boston Music Hall—During the two years that Boston Music Hall has been under the management of Stair and Wilbur there has been no attraction to play at the house that has proved more popular than Joseph R. Grimmer's production of Edward E. Kidder's delightful play of life among the Berkshire Hills, entitled "Sky Farm." A few weeks ago negotiations were concluded between Stair and Wilbur and Manager Grimmer whereby this popular attraction is to return to Music Hall on Monday of next week for a limited engagement of several weeks and it is safe to presume, that this return engagement will prove a welcome treat to Boston theatre-goers who appreciate a good play. Since its last presentation at Music Hall a number of improvements have been made in the cast which has been materially strengthened for the Boston engagement. Daily matinees will be given during the engagement, and the same popular scale of prices will prevail.

Whist.

A somewhat similar, successful hold up of ace was recently published in the Detroit Free Press:

"Where—as we frequently hold up the ace of a plain suit to no advantage at all, and lose it and the game together, it is rarely wrong to hold up the ace of trumps for the third round, especially if that card is a player's only reentry. True, the capture of the first or second round of trumps enables the player to exhaust two rounds immediately or in the latter case three, but such a play is far from prudent when a great kill is pending and one's strength is all confined to one suit. What chance exists for this hand of South's save the finding of four trumps with partner. He cannot take a diamond force at the beginning of the deal, except with the loss of four or five tricks. In the diagram below, South gained five tricks by calling for trumps, and refusing the diamond force, and holding up the ace of trumps till the second round."

"Trick 1. South refuses to trump the doubtful trick. All the South players who played this deal did so, but the discard was various. One player threw the ace of clubs—which at that stage of the game would be decidedly too informative, as the remainder of South's hand was so poor. One player discarded the six of clubs, very bad, indeed; another, the nine of clubs, intending to make a reverse or strength discard, but the opportunity did not come to complete the signal. We consider the ten of spades the best discard by all odds; certainly, if any hand lay a-begging for a trump lead it was South's."

"Trick 2. Here occurs what might be called the 'coup de ruse.' South underplays his trumps, keeping the ace for the second round. West is tempted to pursue the diamond suit as the king will either force South or make."

"Trick 3. South takes the force, runs a round of trumps, puts his partner in with a spade, and then shows his gorgeous club suit, by discarding the ace on the next lead."

"West has two opportunities to make his ace of spades and loses both. If he leads it instead of the losing diamond at trick 7 he will make two spade tricks."

MR. HOVEY DEAD.

Mr. Hamlin L. Hovey, one of the leading business men of Waltham, died at Old Point Comfort, Va., Thursday of last week aged 65 years. He was a prominent coal merchant and among the many positions of trust which he had held was that of president of the Waltham National Bank. Mr. Hovey succeeded his father-in-law, Mr. Joseph W. Parmenter in the coal business and also assumed his interest in the Newton and Watertown Gas Light Company. He was a director of that institution for twenty years and up to about a year ago when the company changed hands, which were largely attended by friends and business associates, were held from the family residence on Main street, Waltham, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. Francis E. Webster, rector of the Christ church. Selections were rendered by a male quartette and the burial was in Mount Peake Cemetery. The pall bearers were Col. G. Frank Frost, Charles H. Moulton, vice president of the Waltham National Bank, Nathan Tolman, Thomas P. Smith, Bradshaw S. Tolman, Hon. Henry N. Fisher, Francis Murdoch, president of the Newton National Bank and Waldo Learned, general superintendent of the Newton and Watertown Gas Light Company.

DEATH OF BENJAMIN B. CONVERSE.

Deceased was the son of the late Benjamin and Adeline Battelle Converse and was a native of Boston where he was born 80 years ago. He was a leather merchant on South street and was in active business until failing health caused his retirement. He was a former president of the Everett Bank and was for many years one of its directors. A widow and two sons survive him. Funeral services were held from the family residence Monday afternoon at 2:15, Rev. Frank B. Matthews, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, officiating and selections were rendered by a male quartette. The interment was at Forest Hills.

—The announcement that the Riverside Recreation grounds has been offered for sale will be a surprise to many who have found the grounds a great convenience and relief during the summer months. The sale of the grounds does not mean that the scheme has been a failure, however, but only that Mr. C. W. Hubbard, the originator and manager can no longer give them sufficient care and attention. The grounds were a new departure in their line, being in fact a semi-public Country Club and last year over 600 young men of Boston and vicinity were members. There is some talk of a public movement to save the grounds from going into the hands of some private individual who will buy for a money making scheme.

Norumbega Park

OPENS MAY 30.

Never has Norumbega Park appeared in better form than this season and it is promised that patrons who throng this picturesque resort on the opening day, Monday, May 30, will find many new sights. The most conspicuous new feature this season will be the new open air theatre which has been constructed at an immense cost and has a seating capacity of over 2000. In other words it will seat more than any theatre in Boston and that all on the ground floor. An immense iron trussed roof, twenty thousand feet square will protect the audience from sun and rain. In short the plans call for the largest and handsomest open air theatre in the world. Many important improvements will be seen in the zoological garden, the mysterious chalet, the boat house, the restaurant, the Indian colony, swing court, merry-go-round and the numerous other features will be found as popular as ever.

Golf.

The Woodland Golf Club will open its course for the season the coming week. The greens have been put in first class condition and extensive improvements have been made to the clubhouse. New officers have been elected as follows: President, Arthur J. Wellington; vice president, R. H. Stearns, Jr.; treasurer, J. B. Kelley; greens committee, A. J. Wellington, E. N. Wright, W. C. Cady, member-ship committee, A. H. Newell, J. B. Kelley, E. S. Benedict; finance committee, J. B. Kelley, A. J. Wellington, Dr. J. C. Bossidy; tournament committee, E. N. Wright, W. K. Corey, W. L. Church; house committee, Dr. Bossidy, C. A. Hubbard, J. A. McCloud.

Base Ball.

On Saturday May 14th, the strong White Sox team of Newton formerly called the Jefferson A. A. were defeated by the Mason Grammar school of Newton Centre by the score of 12 to 4. The game was replete with fast plays, the White Sox infield had very little playing to do except a few grounders, on the other hand the infield of the Mason school were continuously kept at work. The battery work of both teams was very effective the Mason school pitcher striking out six men, while the pitcher of the Newtons fanned eighteen of the opposing team. Giffen caught a great game for Newton.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.

Messrs Crouse and Stoddard, notwithstanding their constantly increasing business at the Vendome Bakery, 358 Centre street, Newton, will open a dairy lunch for ladies and gentlemen on Wednesday of next week. A portion of their floor space has been partitioned off from the main store, and attractively furnished with mirrors, rugs, draperies, chandeliers and specially designed tables and chairs. Delicately decorated china, handsome silver and glass and the best of linen will be used. They purpose to provide steaks, chops, eggs, salads, besides the usual dairy lunch and can also arrange for small luncheon parties if desired. A place of this character has long been needed in Newton, and the reputation of this enterprising firm is so high that we predict a successful business for them.

Ryder, Mrs. Marietta S. Clifford, Mrs. Mary L. Bellows.

Mrs. Adelaide L. Gilman and Mrs. Ellen E. Pratt were unanimously elected Honorary Vice Presidents of the club.

The business meeting was followed by the annual supper after which the members were entertained by the club chorus under the direction of Miss Alice Morton; readings by Miss Rosamond Broekway of Brookline; song by Mrs. Chester Morton; trio, Miss Alice Morton, Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Beardsley. The quaint costumes of Ye Olden Tymes worn by the club members added much to the merriment of the occasion.

Mrs. Retta Wetherbee, President, and Mrs. L. Augusta Carter, past President of the City Federation were special guests.

CLARK-THWING.

At the residence of the Misses Thwing, 89 Watertown Street, on Wednesday evening May 12th, took place one of the prettiest home weddings of the season, when their niece, Geneva S. Thwing was married to Dan L. Clark of Belgrade, Me.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Grant, pastor of the Baptist Church of Watertown. Miss Gertrude Thwing was bridesmaid and Carol D. Warren of Waterville, Me. was best man. The ushers were C. Rolfe and Francis B. Thwing, brothers of the bride. The house was decorated beautifully with apple and cherry blossoms. After an informal reception, refreshments were served and the happy couple left on their wedding journey amid a shower of confetti and good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark will reside in Belgrade, Me.

NO TRANSFERS.

R. R. Commissioners Decide in Favor of Company.

Free Transfers on N. & B. Line
Withdrawn until Sept. 30, '05.

The following decision of the Railroad Commissioners in the matter of free transfers and improved service on the Newton and Boston Street Railway was made public yesterday afternoon:

Petition of the Newton and Boston Street Railway Company for consent to withdrawal of transfers.

Petition of D. Frank Lord and others for restoration of service upon the Newton and Boston street railway.

Two petitions are before us, one by the company for authority to withdraw transfers, the other by patrons for the restoration of service.

The first is a proceeding under section 74, chapter 112, Revised Laws, which provides that "no corporation which operates a street railway shall withdraw or discontinue the use of transfers from one car or line of cars to another without the approval of the Board." It is doubtful whether this statute applies to the transfers in question here, and there are, beside, other possible complications connected with their proposed withdrawal; but as this seems to have been the wish of parties, we have treated the situation as one in which our decision might have a practical value.

That the public can only be well served when the company which serves it is able to realize a reasonable return upon the capital honestly invested is too plain a truth to need discussion.

A voluntary association, the Boston and Suburban Electric Company, holds as a stockholder the controlling interest in the Newton and Boston and the Newton companies and in other properties. What those who are thus associated do with the dividends which they receive from their shares in railway stocks or what value they place upon such shares is of no more importance to those who use these railways and pay the fares which support them than if the controlling stockholder were an individual. The Board deals only with the capitalization of the railway companies, their methods of constructing, maintaining and operating their railways and the corporate receipts and expenditures. That a common ownership and management makes the several Newton railways to all intents and purposes parts of one local system is a fact to be given due weight.

The Newton and Boston company was incorporated under the general law in 1892. The original location, granted in December 1891, extended from Newtonville to Newton Centre. In May 1892 the company was given an extension of location to Newton Highlands and Newton Upper Falls. A location in Needham was secured later. In November 1897 the company leased the Newtonville and Watertown railway, thus increasing the mileage of track operated to about twelve miles.

The number of passengers carried upon the Newton and Boston railway in 1898 was 1,163,232. Of these nineteen per cent were carried upon transfers. In 1903 the number of passengers carried was 1,689,292. Of these more than one half used transfers, thus paying half fare. This half fare covered a possible ride of four and a half miles in one direction and six and a half miles in the other.

Death of Stephen O. Thayer.

Mr. Stephen O. Thayer, for twenty eight years a well known merchant in this city, died at Westboro last Saturday afternoon after a long period of failing health.

He was born in Canton, Mass., August 16, 1831, and for many years he was engaged in the printing business with an office over the old Boylston market on Washington street, Boston.

Mr. Thayer was terribly injured in the noted railroad accident at Revere in the early seventies and bore the marks for the remainder of his life. In 1876 he came to Newton and began business in stoves and ranges with the late W. L. Stiles under the firm name of Thayer and Stiles. Their first store was in the old Nonantum building but in 1877 they moved into the store now occupied by S. O. Thayer and Co in the Eliot Block.

Mr. Thayer was married three times and is survived by a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Elwyn E. Snyder and Mrs. Carlton H. Crocker.

Funeral services were held at Mt. Auburn Tuesday afternoon conducted by Rev. A. L. Hudson of the Channing church.

Colonel Edgar J. Bliss of West Newton is the author of the following ode, which was read at the dedication of the statue of Gen. William F. Bartlett in Boston today.

Grand soldier of the State,
Who met his glorious fate,
In manhood's hour,
Long may his memory thrive,
Long may his name survive,
Long keep his deeds alive,
His life's best dower.

Pride of the Berkshire Hills,
The heart in gladness thrills
With his fair name.
He fought his land to save,
His country's history gave
A tribute to the brave,
To Bartlett's fame.

Amid the battle flags
With love that never lags
We lift his face.
God grant that we may be
Like him as true to Thee
And win eternity.
God give us grace.

MRS. GOLDING DEAD.

Mr. Georgiana M. Golding, the wife of Mr. William H. Golding of Homer street, Newton Centre, died quite suddenly last week Thursday night. Mrs. Golding sustained a paralytic shock some seven years ago and had never fully recovered from it. She was born in Boston in 1844 and was 60 years, 4 months and 11 days old. Mrs. Golding has lived in Newton Centre for 11 years and endeared herself to all by her warm and sympathetic nature. She was a member of Trinity Episcopal church and prominent in the organizations and charities of that institution. She leaves a husband, one daughter and two sons.

Funeral services were held from her late residence on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity, officiating. The house was filled with her many acquaintances and friends. The floral gifts were many and very beautiful. The Mendelssohn quartette sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Abide With Me," and "Eternal Goodness." The interment was at Newton Cemetery.

Newtonville Pastor May Go.

Rev. Ozora S. Davis, D. D., of the Central Congregational church, Newtonville has received a call from the South Congregational church of New Britain, Conn.

Rev. Dr. Davis has been the pastor of the Central church of Newtonville since Feb. 1, 1900, and is one of the best known and popular clergymen in the city. He is a native of Wheelock Vt., where he was born in July, 1866, the only son of Captain Alexander Davis. He was educated at the public schools in White River Junction and afterward at St. Johnsbury Academy Vt., and was graduated from Dartmouth in 1899. He fitted himself for the ministry at Hartford. During the vacation portion of his second year he resided in Mansfield House, in the East End of London, England, where he shared in the activities of the settlement and studied philanthropic work in East London. He also travelled in England and Scotland. During his senior year he acted as stated supply for the First Presbyterian church in Hartford. He was graduated in divinity in 1894. Following travel and study in Germany, particularly at Leipzig University, where he won the degrees of A. M. and Ph. D., he was called in 1896 to the pastorate of the First Congregational church of Springfield, Vt. From this church he went to Newtonville. His latest call has been anticipated by his Newtonville parishioners.

CENTRAL CHURCH,
Whose Pastor has been called to New Britain, Conn.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

Governor Bates has sent in seven vetoes up to date and the legislature has said for the seventh time: We didn't mean it Governor, we were not thinking, you know we don't think much anyhow. You must get used to our jokes. The Ways and Means know us better, Governor, for they are a part of us, only they make believe think, and thus fool the public, but we know that Parker, Treadway, Warren and Ward don't cross their thinking caps any more than the rest of us, and when they are in executive session, they are just as natural born fellows as the men up in the House. The seven vetoes of the Governor remind one of the seven chuchies which some of us read about in Revelations, and the well known words, "I have somewhat against Thee."

The seventh veto has called out some comment as to the Governor's consistency. The veto of the casualty insurance has also created some ugly talk. Some say that the Hartford Company, which has always been so lavish in spending money in former years to defeat the same proposition, knew this year that they were not obliged to spend any money in the usual direction, for the bill was to be defeated another way. This is lobby talk, to be sure, but it must be admitted that the Fourth Department in the State Government has a pretty vigorous manner of using the English language, when it drops the mysterious cloak that usually envelops its form. The lobby is the most interesting feature of all the forces of State government, for the reason that it does not stop to sleep. If it gets a slap on one cheek it turns its face and says, "well done my boy, now bring a blush to the other, it's physical culture to us." The lobby can praise the governor one moment and leave the praise out the next just as easily as Scholfield of Ipswich can talk. The lobby is a law unto itself, meets everybody with a smile and pockets the change.

Senator Lane of Boston took advantage of the absence last Friday afternoon of the Western Senators to trot through the Senate an anti-temperance bill. Of course the senators present were ready to fall in and the stunning waistcoat won out with only three senators on record against it. Senator Benis, Chamberlain and Gove declined to join the midnight marauders. Eighteen senators voted for the bill leaving nineteen members as absent or unrecorded. Of course, it was a smart Boston trick, but it will hardly pay for the powder burned by Senator Lane, as the House turned the hands of the clock back sixty seconds in less than a minute Tuesday. This move will tend to make the effort to defeat "the mistake" more unpopular than ever, for, since Newton of Everett proved that the mistake was done on purpose, the present law has been more firmly fixed than ever, and the liquor dealers might as well be satisfied with doing business nineteen out of the twenty-four hours, as long as sober legitimate traffic is confined to about nine hours. It is getting a bit wearisome to hear all this talk about there being a public demand for the change. There is absolutely no such demand and never has been. A few liquor sellers and drinkers do not constitute a public demand in Massachusetts, and such arguments only injure a bad cause. When eighteen members of the Senate suspend all rules to pass the Semi-colon bill, they demonstrate how out of touch they are with public sentiment. Thank fortune it was not the action of the Senate.

"If the time ever comes when the members of the Legislature spend their time at the State House in making laws instead of making trades, the condition of affairs in this Commonwealth will be greatly improved."

The above is a sort of half truth. The editor of the Transcript knows a thing or two about the Legislature and one of those things is that laws are made by making trades. Nothing more corrupting is practiced at the State House than this form of debased lobbying, and no lobbyist practices his art more to the discredit of the Commonwealth than the lobbyist who, elected by the people with "full power and authority to make, ordain and establish all manner of wholesome and reasonable laws," etc. prostitutes his high office to the selfish ends of the most degrading form of lobbying, namely, trading a vote to make a law.

A member of the Legislature who comes from one of the rural districts is a constant attendant at Keith's Theatre, where he goes every week, he says, to hear the Faded Orchestra and read the paragraph in the program which says that fees of any kind are absolutely not permitted in the theatre. He says that it does his soul good after eating at the hotels and restaurants for a week, to read at Keith's "that it is the desire of the management that all be treated alike, and this becomes an impossibility when fees are given for courtesies extended by employees." This member says that this, together with the Fadedtes, recompenses him for leaving God's country these early summer days and playing legislation under the gilded dome.

From Japan.

The following editorial from The Japan Daily Mail, published in Yokohama, Japan, under date of Feb. 22, 1904, is reprinted by request. Russia seems to be determined that this grim chapter of international history shall have its comic side. What is more, she appears to be willing that the laughter shall be entirely at her own expense. The Tsar figures as the jester, and the character seems to suit him well, though the world has hitherto supposed him to be rather of a grave and sombre than of a jocular temperament. It is true that His Imperial Majesty's humor would be more appreciable were it less cryptic. We are uncertain, for example, what he means by treachery. Hitherto to the traitor's stock-in-trade has been supposed to be a marked readiness to make promises and offer pledges without any idea of keeping the former or being bound by the latter. Japan has not shown herself specially rich in that faculty. She has never solemnly engaged, for example, to do a certain thing by a certain definite date, and then proceeded to do the very opposite thing when the date arrived. She has never made with another nation an agreement binding herself to commence an explicit operation on a fixed day and to complete the work in three installments each at its own definite period, and she has never, when those periods arrived, treated them as though they were still in the lap of an inscrutably distant future. That kind of conduct would be called treachery by ordinary folks, but, for reasons which we need not elaborate, it is plainly not counted treachery by Russia. Her definition of treachery appears to be the striking at an enemy without warning for him to get good and ready. To warn him that friendly intercourse has ceased and that he must be prepared for any action which the other side's interests appear to dictate—that is not enough. If he be a large, slowly moving creature, requiring much time to sharpen his ponderous sword and don his weighty armour, that time must be given. There must be no hasty striking, no unseemly quickness of attack. To be alert, to be prompt to obey the German strategist's axiom by taking the initiative the very instant that war is known to be necessary, that is treachery. By behaving in that shameless manner Japan has written herself down a traitor. Great, big, strong Japan and poor, weak, little Russia! The comparison makes the former's procedure all the nastier and more discourteous. The Government in Tokyo have shown most disingenuous suspicion of Russia. When they saw her protracting the negotiations week after week and month after month the while she hastened her preparations for war; when they heard her proclaiming that now, now she was about to make concessions and that much margin for talk still existed in the region of neutral zones and spheres of influence, the while she hurried out her warships to Eastern seas and her regiments to the scene of the treachery which was not orthodox treachery, they betrayed their distrust by attributing ulterior designs to an honorable and promise-keeping empire, and by allowing themselves to imagine its statesmen capable of insincerity. And then after having waited so long that the world laughed at their suicidal patience and their own nationals cried bitterly against such a sacrifice of the country's interests, they were so inconsiderate, so offensively abrupt, as to step out of a game where they had everything to lose and nothing to gain, and to inform Russia that friendly discussion must cease and stern action take its place. That was bad enough. But worse was to follow. For within the ridiculously short space of three days the giant Japan rushed at the pigmy Russia and dealt her come blows that made her reel. What is the result? The result is that quite a time must elapse before Russia can return the buffets in a manner worthy of her bulk and slowness. "Look here," cries the Tsar. "I wasn't ready and I can't be ready for ever so long, and what a figure I shall have to cut in the meanwhile! I never provoked any one. I never provoked another persons belongings. I never promised to return them and didn't do it. I never put off for weeks and months the making of replies to friendly proposals, and when I did make them, they were not each more unsatisfactory and less sincere than the other. It was Japan that did all those things, the provoking, treacherous little creature. I didn't dream that she would dare to hit me, and now she has not only given me a buffet, but done it at such an unseemly moment that ever so much time must elapse before I shall be good and ready to return the clap." It is really kind of the Tsar to furnish these materials for a good laugh.

The sober truth, however, is that His Majesty's Manifesto is addressed not to the world but to his own people. It is solely for domestic consumption. The Russians throughout the wide dominions of the great Northern Power, must not know the truth. At Dalny they did not know on the 15th of February that Port Arthur had been attacked on the 8th and 9th. Neither did the Chinese in Canton know that Weihaiwei had fallen in 1895 until a month after the brave Admiral Ting had breathed his last. The truth can not be served out without sauce or en masse to the Russian people. They must have it diluted and in small doses, their constitution not being robust.

The Newton Vacation Week.

As summer approaches, and plans are made for rest and recreation, let us not forget the many in our midst to whom the season brings no bright anticipations of rest or change; overworked mothers, whose best efforts can hardly supply the necessities of their growing families, aged people, to whom an electric ride or a breath of sea-air gives a brightness for many a day; working girls whose small wages often form an important part of their family's support, and to whom the word vacation means only loss of pay, and consequently poorer living at home; sick children, of whom the doctors have said, "A week at the seashore, or in the country, would do wonders for them." All of these classes we have among us, not in large numbers to be sure, for our city is a highly favored one, but enough of them to call for our sympathy and aid. Will it not be a privilege for those who are able to spend lavishly for summer enjoyments to provide for some of these weary workers or sickly children, that the season may have something of brightness in it for all?

Last year the sum of $212 was raised by the sale of the Newton Vacation Week; of this sum $80 were paid for the board of eight tired or sick women, three of whom took their babies with them; $47 enabled six more to visit friends at a distance; $42 gave day's outings and picnics to twelve families, aggregating sixty women and children; and $32 more, afforded 30 old people and little children delightful electric rides, while the last ten dollar bill enabled a most worthy old lady to enjoy the comfort of her one little room through July and August, with the feeling that her rent was paid. If it seems to anyone that the money thus spent has not given its equivalent of happiness and cheer let no notice be taken of this appeal; but if any would like to aid in this undenominational and largely unorganized work, not of charity, but of neighborly kindness, they are cordially invited to join in the work, either by contributions of useful or fancy articles, cake, confectionary or flowers, or by their patronage in the purchase of these articles on the afternoon of Thursday, June 2nd in the Y. M. C. A. rooms.

Committee of Arrangements, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. J. W. Davis, Mrs. H. E. Hibbard, Mrs. H. D. Bassett, Mrs. Howard Mason, The Misses Spear.

Camp Kineo for Boys.

After about 10 years experience in summer camps for boys, F. Dana Sears of Hyde Park, Mass., will reopen July 1st, his camp on Long Lake, Harrison, Me., three miles from North Bridgton, in the midst of New England's most charming scenery. Mr. Sears is a graduate of Dartmouth college, and a professor of mathematics in Stetson University, Deland, Fla.

The world wants men; men that others can live with. We want strong, healthy men, clean, moral men, educated men—men that are men in every sense of the word.

Our country is looking to the boyhood of America for its future statesmen, its builders, its organizers, its educators. Is your boy well? He may know books, but can he keep his body healthy under the present strenuous life that is demanded. Camp Kineo is an opportunity for development along his line.

Nature preaches to him in the grandeur of its purity and points him to his Maker and his Friend. A boy preaches to himself more than any outsider, but environment gives suggestion and a text.

Is your boy educated? The greatest education is to know others, to become adaptable to conditions, to recognize the rights of your fellows, to enter, in other words, into their public life and aid in developing and maintaining the common good. Any boy, really interested, can secure an illustrated booklet (see cut in another column) of F. D. Sears, 59 Lincoln street, Boston, Mass. Best of references furnished.

NO TRANSFERS.

The company has paid dividends in four years only, viz. in 1896 to 1899 inclusive. The total amount thus distributed being $16,812.50. No one of these dividends should have been paid, as the money ought to have been applied to the maintenance of the property.

If we were to fix the exact amount of the yearly losses which the company appears to have sustained it would be necessary to rearrange the figures given at the hearing and to criticize the fact that the cost of power charged against itself has been greater than that charged by it against the companies which it has supplied with power. But it is enough for present purposes that, making all allowances for overcharges or changes in accounts, the company since 1899 has unquestionably met with a heavy annual loss in operation which has impaired its assets to the extent of a hundred and twenty five thousand dollars. Such a state of affairs cannot continue. Were every debt wiped out no one would take the property as a gift provided the railway is to be run in the future under like conditions with those of the past.

An appraisal shows that the railway has a replacement value of between $450,000 and $500,000. The outstanding capital stock of the company amounts to $200,000 and the outstanding bonds to $200,000. The floating indebtedness is $285,000. This indebtedness includes the operating losses and certain expenses of construction which cannot now be properly capitalized, the two constituting the impairment of the property.

We have determined to approve a withdrawal of transfers upon this railway for a limited period as an experimental measure, with the understanding that during such period no dividends shall be paid and that net earnings, should there be any, shall be devoted to the reduction of the floating indebtedness of the company.

As the withdrawal of these transfers will not only benefit the Newton and Boston but as well the Newton company, with which they are exchanged, we have considered the extent to which that company will be benefited thereby and are convinced that, taking the most sanguine view of any resulting increase in earnings, there need be no fear that such increase will bring to the stockholders of the Newton company any more than a reasonable return upon its proper capitalization.

The period for which the Board consents to a withdrawal of transfers upon the Newton and Boston street railway, other than those between its own cars and lines, is that ending September 30, 1905. The Board will then review the questions now presented in the light of the experience thus gained with the purpose of recommending such action as will give to the company an opportunity to operate the railway under reasonable conditions and secure to the public full protection of rights and privileges.

The second of the two petitions relates to the action of the company in changing its schedule from twenty to thirty minute time. This change was made as another measure of retrenchment.

During a part of the day the light travel justifies this arrangement, but at other times we think that a better service should be given. Accommodation in car service is paramount to the question of fares, and we recommend that the company provide a more frequent service through the busy hours of travel in the morning and in the evening. Something more than a mere restoration of the former service might well be given during this part of the day.

Miss Henry played most delightfully, the program comprising works of Bach, Wagner, the "Parafal Vorspiel," Tchaikowsky, Guilmant, Salome, Dubois and concluding with a very brilliant Allegro from a Sonata by Whiting. In all these Miss Henry displayed great skill and finish in execution, combined with exquisite refinement in taste. The occasion was worthy a more extended notice than we have space for today.

At the Churches.

The directory of the members of the Eliot congregation has just been issued in a neat form and binding giving a short historical sketch, a list of the ministers who have formerly served and the officers of the church society and choir.

A meeting of the Business Men's Class was held at Eliot church last Sunday. Plans were considered for the coming season and Messrs Henry E. Cobb and Charles A. Haskell were appointed a committee on arrangements.

There was a good attendance in the chapel of Eliot church last Friday evening at the Union Peace service. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead the well known lecturer was the guest and spoke on the coming Peace Conference to be held in Boston next October. Mrs. Mead's topic was "The Peace of the World." She sketched the work of the first Hague conference, the result of which was forming an international tribunal, to which might be presented cases of differences between nations, and said that 11 nations had been tried there. She spoke of two important measures now before Congress which she hoped the people would urge the Senate to adopt for the establishing of arbitration treaties between this country, England, France and other nations on all questions in dispute, not excluding questions of honor, and another sent by the Legislature of Massachusetts, to establish an advisory congress where representatives of all the nations shall meet and decide vexed questions on boundary lines and similar matters. Mrs. Mead made the interesting statement that a first class battle ship costs as much as all the ninety four buildings of Harvard University, that just previous to the Cuban War our army cost fifty million annually and that over one hundred and forty seven million was paid out in pensions. The Twentieth Century will add to the International Court an International Congress. Gradual disarmament will accompany this and finally a small international army will enforce international decrees while militia alone will secure order within each nation.

Rev. Albert L. Squier, pastor of the Newtonville Methodist Episcopal church will preach a sermon Sunday morning suggestive of Memorial Day. The subject will be "Unheralded Heroism." In the evening he will preach a special sermon to young men. Subject, "The Whole Man." At the latter service it is hoped to have special singing.

Letter to W. P. Leavitt & Sons, Newton.

Dear Sirs: If you paint two houses alike with two different paints, and one takes twice as much paint as the other, you know which paint to buy after that—so far as go-far goes—don't you?

One of these paints is Devco; the other is any average paint. The worst are worse than that; the better are not much better; no other paint than Devco is anywhere near Devco in go-far. Devco is go-further; the rest are go-short, go-middling and go-three-quarters.

Yours truly

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Globe Theatre—If the Isle of Spice were only somewhere on the Massachusetts coast and convenient to the city of Boston, it is a safe gamble that the entire masculine element of Boston would plan to spend its vacation there this summer, for the population of this "merry isle" is composed mainly of maidens of grace and beauty, pleasing in voice, as well as in looks, and with a variety of unique and original dances at their command. They are numerous in number and gorgeously garbed, making a strong aggregation of feminine beauty and talent, sufficient in itself to make the Isle of Spice an unqualified success. The Isle of Spice which began its third week at the Globe Theatre May 23rd, is said to be by the Boston press, one of the best things that the city has seen in many moons.

Boston Music Hall—The beautiful pastoral play, "Sky Farm" begins the second week of its engagement at Boston Music Hall on Monday afternoon of next week, starting the week with a holiday matinee on Decoration Day. There can be no question of the advisability of the management of the theatre in bringing this sterling attraction back to Music Hall, for the hearty reception with which it met during its two earlier visits this season prompted the management in believing that there were many people who would embrace the opportunity of once again witnessing the play which holds the record for successful business at Music Hall. The purity and sweetness of this place has made it a welcome visitor with the patrons of Music Hall, and it is safe to prophesy another successful engagement of the piece. Matinees will be given every afternoon, and the regular scale of popular prices of 15 and 25 cents at the matinees and 25 and 50 cents at night will prevail during the engagement.

Tremont Theatre—All of the productions that have been made by Mr. Savage have been successes, but "Woodland" undoubtedly has more unique features, and is more of a Boston summer production than any other of the pieces that have been brought out by this manager. All of the characters are decidedly novel, for the entire atmosphere of the opera is "in the bird kingdom." Since the first production was made, more than a month ago, two very odd characters have been introduced, called "The Hot Bird and the Cold Bottle." These characters were created by John Donahue and Mattie Nichols, one of the cleverest eccentric dancing teams on the stage. In fact, every character in "Woodland" is a novelty for theatregoers, for the reason that there is not a human being represented on the stage at any time during the two acts. "Woodland" is a delightful summer fantasy of the forest, brimful of comedy and tuneful music.

Keith's Theatre—James F. Dolan and Ida Lenhart will be the "headliners" of the vaudeville section of the Keith show the week of May 30. It is five years since they last played Boston, so that they will practically rank as newcomers, and their mirth-provoking sketch, "A Hightoned Burglar," is due to score a big hit. Other entertainers in the same bill are Searl and Violet Allen, talking comedians, Lavelle and Grant, hand-to-hand balancers and physical culture experts, The Helstons, step dancers, Johnny Williams, the American Li Hung Chang burlesque magician and illusionist, and the Aerial Shaws, clever trapeze performers. For the juveniles, one of the best troupe of dogs in the country, Taffy's, has been engaged. The Fadettes concert of popular music will continue at the same hours.

Austin and Stone—An exhibition of infant incubators, with real live Boston babies under the glass, is a promised feature at Austin and Stone's Museum next week. This will be Boston's first opportunity to see an invention without a parallel in modern times doing the remarkable, almost human, work of saving the lives of weakly and prematurely born babies. These incubators are coming here from Paris and are of the latest and most scientifically approved type. As many as four tiny atoms of humanity will be shown in the novel exhibit.

—A good number were present in the Channing church parlors last Friday evening when the three act play entitled "A Girl's Secret" was presented by Miss Byfield's class. The character parts were taken by the Misses Alice Delano, Eleanor Boyd, Carolyn Clarke, Marguerite Brown, Clara Webster, Helen Sheparison, Marion Kingrose, Olive Lloyd and Marie Chaplin. Miss Ruth Eaton was the pianist. A good sum was realized for the benefit of the Children's Mission.

—What came very near proving a serious accident occurred Saturday morning on Washington street near Channing, when a double-seated car, owned by William Almy of 118 Dean street, Brookline, came in collision with an Auburndale bound electric of the Boston Suburban electric company. The carriage was driven by Joseph Donohue, and its occupants were the three children of Mr. Almy and their nurse. According to the driver the horse became frightened at the approaching car and swerved across the tracks. The car struck the vehicle with considerable force, throwing Donohue out, but fortunately he escaped with minor bruises. Clearing itself from the car and carriage, the horse ran across Washington street through Centre Place and brought up against an iron fence in front of the library. The nurse and the children were thoroughly frightened, but kept their seats and escaped injury.

—The will of John C. Chaffin, for many years a resident of Vernon street, which has been filed for probate leaves to the Massachusetts Horticultural society $1000 in trust, the income will be devoted to special prizes "for hardy perpetual roses of unusual merit." Special private bequests are left to relatives, the residue of his estate going to John P. R. Sherman, to be held in trust for the widow, Mary E. Chaffin, during her life. After her death the will provides for the disposition of the estate as follows: Newton Hospital, $5000; Newton Free Library, $5000; Boston Home for Aged men, $1000; Boston Home for Aged women, $1000; Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children, Boston Children's Aid Society, and Boston Y. W. C. A., $2000 each. If not required for the grandchildren, two-thirds of the income of the residue will be paid to the wife of Newton as an educational fund for the benefit of graduates of the High school.

Chronic cases relieved in from 20 minutes to one hour, and complete cure guaranteed. No Morphine, Aconite, Opium, Chloral or other dangerous drugs used. I request to say that physicians who attempt to treat the above, fail to do good because they do not fully understand the cause they endeavor to remove. Instead of removing the primary cause, as I do, they treat the secondary symptoms; hence their failure and my success. I have treated and cured doctors and their families in Boston and New York without making Morphine fiends of them. I am a Specialist, and Neuralgia, Asthma and Heart disease are my specialties. I guarantee to cure any case undertaken. Proofs at office. 24 years successful practice. Consultation free.

Vacation Resorts In New England. Waiting For Hot Weather.

After the severe and protracted siege of winter weather, predictions are rife for a very warm summer; and the thousands of vacationists who annually migrate to the seashore, the country and the mountains are perhaps planning, at any rate thinking, of their haunts for 1904. New England is the stamping ground. Here hordes of summer visitors flock every year. The farmhouses are prepared for company after the middle of May; the shore resorts get ready in June, and by the last of June, or the first of July, the mountains are welcoming their guests. Maine has both coast and inland lake resorts of supreme beauty. New Hampshire has a short but scenic section of sea coast; but the famous White Mountains and Lakes Winnepesaukee and Sunapee are within her borders. Vermont claims the renowned Champlain, Memphremagog and Willoughby; and Massachusetts asks no favors with her pleasant valleys and impressive mountain ranges.

All of this vacation territory is described and pictured in the literature published by the Boston and Maine Railroad's Passenger Department, Boston. The six beautiful portfolios, Lakes, Rivers, Seashore, Mountains, Picturesque, and the Charles River to the Hudson, contain beautiful half-tone reproductions, and any of these books will be mailed upon receipt of six cents, or the entire set for thirty-six cents.

The descriptive booklets, thirteen in number, containing interesting and instructive reading matter concerning the various sections will be mailed upon receipt of two cents for each book, or twenty-six cents for the entire set. They comprise "Lakes and Streams," "All Along Shore," "Valley of the Connecticut and Northern Vermont," "Lake Sunapee," "South-east New Hampshire," "South-west New Hampshire," "Monadnock Region," "Hoosac Country and Deerfield Valley," "Merrimack Valley," "Central Massachusetts," "Lake Memphremagog," "Among the Mountains" and "Fishing and Hunting," with an additional booklet giving the fish and game laws of Northern New England and Canada. The "Bird's Eye View of the White Mountains," a handsome colored map, showing the numerous ravines and peaks as viewed from the summit of Mount Washington, will be mailed upon receipt of six cents in stamps.

The Drowning of Two Newton Boys.

Herbert Burgess of Otis street Newtonville and Harry Stoddard of Newtonville avenue, Newtonville, were drowned Wednesday afternoon while canoeing on the Charles River near the Norumbega Tower.

How the affair occurred is not known, the cries of the boys after their canoe had upset being the first notice that anything had gone wrong. These cries were heard by a couple of laborers who were at work in a cove about a quarter of a mile away. They jumped into their boat, and, rowing around a bend, saw the overturned canoe near the tower. The boys were not in sight, but, when close to the canoe, the men observed some bubbles coming up at a spot where the water was about 10 feet deep. They used a boat hook and soon brought to the surface the body of young Stoddard. As it showed signs of life, it was taken ashore, and every effort was made to restore him. The body was worked on for over an hour, but unhappily without success. The body of Burgess was recovered within a few minutes of that of Stoddard, and, although it showed no signs of life, was also worked over.

The bodies were taken to the headquarters of the park police near Weston bridge, where they were identified by Charles D. Meserve of the Newton high school. They were later viewed by Medical Examiner Mead.

Stoddard was the son of Dr. Henry B. Stoddard and for the last year has been a pupil at the school connected with the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. He was a remarkably promising young man and had done considerable poster work of merit.

Burgess was the son of Mrs. Addie L. Burgess and was a member of the class of 1905 of the Newton high school.

The funeral of Mr. Stoddard will be held from the Central Congregational church this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Services for Mr. Burgess will be held at the New Church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

UNCLE SAM'S WONDERS

All Executive Departments Send Treasures to the World's Fair.

Display Installed in the Largest Governmental Exposition Building Ever Constructed—Precious Documents—Relics of Famous Statesmen and Soldiers. Working Postal Exhibit.

The United States Government building at the World's Fair occupies an elevated site just south of the main picture of the Exposition. The great central dome of the Government building is visible from the very center of the fair, looking across the picturesque sunken garden that lies between the Palaces of Mines and Metallurgy and Liberal Arts.

The hill slope in front of the Government building is terraced with broad stairways almost completely covering the slope. The building is 800 feet long by 250 feet wide and is the largest structure ever provided at an exposition by the federal government. It is distinguished from all the other large buildings at the Exposition by the steel truss construction, the entire roof being supported by steel arches, forming a splendid domed ceiling.

In this building are installed the exhibits of all the executive departments of the government. The building is a vast storehouse of an endless variety of treasures dear to the heart of every true American. Precious documents are to be seen here, and the autographs of our great men of the past are on display. Relics of famous statesmen and soldiers, carefully preserved through generations, are exhibited. Each governmental department has installed an exhibit showing its official character and mode of operation.

Entering the Government building from the eastern end, the visitor sees at his left a railroad postoffice car. This is not a mere coach standing idle, but is one of the most improved mail cars, in which men attached to the United States railway mail service are actively engaged in "throwing" the mails. Here you will see the postal clerks at work, just as they work while speeding along a railroad track.

A curious collection of old time relics from the postoffice museum at Washington illustrates as no verbal description can do the crude beginnings of the postal system. One of these relics is an old fashioned stage-coach that once carried United States mails through a portion of the Louisiana purchase territory. President Roosevelt, who once inspected it, examined with a rough rider's interest the bullet holes which stage robbers and mountain brigands shot through its stiff leather curtains. General Sherman and Sheridan and President Garfield rode in this old coach during the strenuous days of frontier life. Among the collection of documents showing the primitive postal methods in vogue in the early days is to be seen the old book of accounts kept by the first postmaster general, Benjamin Franklin, all written by hand. There is a rare collection of stamps, including ancient Filipino, Porto Rican and Cuban stamps. The postoffice department's exhibit occupies 12,469 square feet.

Across the aisle, at the right, is the exhibit of the new Department of Commerce and Labor, occupying 1,066 square feet. This exhibit shows what the new executive department stands for and what it is accomplishing. Mr. Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, had charge of the preparation of the exhibit. Charts arranged by him, showing the rapid growth of the nation in agriculture, arts, manufacture, population, etc., are of special interest to sociologists and all students of the labor problem. The Census Bureau exhibit is made in this section. It shows the tabulating machines used in compiling the census reports. The Lighthouse Board, also operating under this department, shows the great revolving lenses in light-houses, with other interesting appliances.

The space in the projecting north-west corner of the building is devoted to the Library of Congress. The edifice which houses this library at Washington is held by many architects to be the most beautiful building in the world. Its interior decorations, by Elmer Ellsworth Gurnsey, furnish one of the chief delights of a visit to the national capital. A large model of this splendid building is a feature of the exhibit. The decorative features of the interior are reproduced in their original colors.

The next exhibit on the right hand side of the central aisle is that of the Interior Department, occupying 11,792 square feet. In this large space the visitor finds so many things of compelling interest that he is loath to leave. The Patent Office exhibit belongs to this section. There are models of many machines that have borne an important part in the development of the nation's industries. The earliest form of every device of human invention, so far as possible, is shown here. For instance, you may see the actual sewing machine that was the first contrivance of its kind ever constructed; it was patented in 1846 by Elias Howe. The first typewriter, patented by C. Thurber in 1842; the model of the first cast iron plow, patented by Charles Newbold in 1797; the first screw propeller, invented by Robert Hook in 1680; and many other "first" things are to be seen. The model of Abraham Lincoln's celebrated device for lifting steamboats off shoals is shown here. The first harvesting machine, made in the year 1800 B. C., is one of the most ancient exhibits at the Exposition. There is also a model of the first steam engine, made in Egypt in the same year.

Every foot of the 200,000 feet of floor space in Uncle Sam's World's Fair building is occupied by exhibits of surpassing interest, and every phase of the people's welfare is shown.

CURIOUS THINGS FROM CHINA

The Most Magnificent Beds Ever Seen Are Part of the Celestial Empire's World's Fair Exhibit.

The Chinese exhibit at the World's Fair is filled with pleasing surprises. Some of the most magnificent articles of furniture are a part of this wonderful display. The carving and inlaying of ivory, bone and wood illustrate the marvelous skill of the Chinese.

Models installed in this interesting exhibit show the homes and home life of the Chinese, their weddings and funerals, Chinese tea house, restaurant and shop, Chinese weaving and some of the beautiful silks and wearing apparel of the Chinese and their methods of manufacturing them.

One feature of the exhibit is two magnificent Chinese beds, each of which has the appearance of being a small house of great beauty. One is a summer bed, the other for winter. The summer bed is hand carved and inlaid with ivory and bone figures and landscapes exquisitely carved and so skillfully joined as to appear a part of the wood. The bed and furniture are of carved bamboo. The bed consists of an anteroom, with tables, chairs and ten stands, and in an inner room, which is the sleeping apartment, there is a couch with coverings of gauzy silks.

The winter bed is still more elaborate. It consists of three compartments. The first contains four chairs, a tea poy and a chest of drawers. This is the sitting apartment. The second is the dressing room, and the third is the sleeping apartment, or the couch itself. The furniture is of rosewood inlaid with ivory carving of birds, flowers and trees. The couch is covered with silks of the finest texture and in gaudy colors. The sleeping compartments are lighted with Chinese lanterns of silk hung at the outer entrance, while the light enters through gauze panels, hand painted and in forms of rosewood inlaid with ivory figures.

A table and dish made of highly polished ash, with exquisitely carved bamboo figures inlaid, are shown. The work is so artistically done that each article seems to have been made of one piece of wood.

There is also a large display of Chinese lanterns made of silk, gauze and other light material and some made of beads artistically arranged with glass centers. The silk and gauze are beautifully hand painted.

There are models of some of the great Chinese temples, theaters and arches, showing elaborate carving in wood and ivory and two large elephant tusks exquisitely carved.

WHARFAGE FREE AT ST. LOUIS

Twenty Miles of River Front For Water Craft at World's Fair City.

Free wharfage will be given to all boats landing at St. Louis during the World's Fair. Traffic Manager Hillery of the Exposition and Joseph P. Whyte, harbor and wharf commissioner of St. Louis, have decided on the locations assigned to the various kinds of boats.

Yachts, steam launches and all boats propelled by their own power have been assigned wharf space between Chouteau avenue and Middle street. These streets, running east and west, form the boundary lines for the central business district of the city.

House boats have been assigned wharf space north of Middle street and south of Chouteau avenue.

St. Louis has a river front of twenty miles. The Broadway line of the Transit company parallels the river from the city limits on the north to Jefferson Barracks on the south. At no point are the cars more than five blocks from the Mississippi river. The World's Fair may be reached for one fare by transferring to any of the eight lines that cross Broadway and reach the Exposition grounds.

No charge will be made for wharfage. Application for space should be made to the harbor and wharf commissioner at the City Hall, on Twelfth street, between Market street and Clark avenue.

THE UNIVERSAL EXPOSITION

The Achievements of Individuals and Nations Faithfully Recorded by This Encyclopedia of Society.

By FREDERICK J. V. SKIFF, Director of Exhibits, World's Fair.

"The wisdom of all ages is none too great for the world's work." In this single salient sentence, uttered in his famous address at Buffalo in September, 1901, President McKinley described the object and the result of expositions.

A modern universal exposition is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, for the inspection of the world, for the study of its experts, by which they may make comparisons and deduction and develop plans for future improvements and progress. Such a universal exposition might well be called an encyclopedia of society. It constitutes a classified, compact, indexed compendium of the achievements and ideas of society in all phases of its activity, extending to the most material as well as the most refined. It offers illustrations covering the full field of social performance, from the production of the shoes on our feet and the pavement beneath them to a presentation of the rarest and most delicate creations of the brains and hands of men in what are called the fine arts of civilization.

The Universal Exposition in St. Louis in 1904 will be such a social encyclopedia in the most comprehensive and accurate sense. It will give to the world in revised and complete details "a living picture of the artistic and industrial development at which mankind has arrived" and will actually provide "a new starting point from which all men may direct future exertions." It will present for the inspection of specialists in all lines of industrial and social endeavor and for the public an assembly of the best which the world has done and has to show in industry, art and science, and what is very important, it will offer these achievements of society, these trophies of civilization, in a highly selected, accurately classified array.

The creators of the St. Louis Exposition have had the experience of all previous great expositions by which to plan and effect its high organization. The continuous and repeated burden of the message of experience handed down by all expositions has been more perfect, more effective classification and arrangement of exhibits.

The classification of the St. Louis Exposition has been prepared to present a sequential synopsis of the developments that have marked man's progress. On its bases will be assembled the most highly organized exposition the world has yet seen.

The St. Louis classification is divided into 10 departments, 144 groups and 807 classes. These grand departments in their order will record what man has accomplished at this time with his faculties, industry and skill and the natural resources at his command in the environment in which he has been placed.

At the head of the Exposition classification has been placed Education, through which man enters social life. Second comes Art, showing the condition of his culture and development. Liberal Arts and Applied Sciences are placed third, to indicate the result of his education and culture, illustrate his tastes and demonstrate his inventive genius, scientific attainment and artistic expression. These three departments equip him for the battle and prepare him for the enjoyments of life. The raw material departments, Agriculture, Horticulture, Mining and Forestry, show how man conserves the forces of nature to his uses. The Department of Manufactures will show what he has done with them; the Department of Machinery the tools he has used. The Department of Transportation will show how he overcomes distances and secures access to all parts of the world. The Department of Electricity will indicate the great forces he has discovered and utilized to convey power and intelligence. And so through the several departments to Anthropology, in which man studies man; and to Social Economy, which will illustrate the development of the human race, how it has overcome the difficulties of civilization and solved problems in which society is involved.

Last is placed physical culture, in which man, his intelligence having reached the supreme point, is able to treat himself as an animal, realizing that his intellectual and moral constitutions require a sound physical body to prompt them to the proper performance of their function.

Education is the keynote of the Universal Exposition of 1904. Each department of the world's labor and development will be represented at St. Louis, classified and installed in such manner that all engaged or interested in such branch of activity may come and see, examine, study and go away advised. Each of the separate sections of the Exposition will be an equivalent of—or, rather, will be in actuality a comprehensive and most effective object lesson in the line of industrial and social achievement and progress which it presents.

Cost of Seeing the World's Fair.

From any point within 300 miles of St. Louis a person may travel to the World's Fair this year, view the wonders of the Exposition for three days and expend the same money he would pay in any other year for train fare alone. This is an absolute fact.

The Western Passenger Association has agreed on a ten day excursion rate, 250 miles or more from St. Louis, for one and one-half fare for the round trip.

ALL THE STATES AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Many Beautiful Pavilions and Pretentious Buildings Show Forth the Enterprise of American Commonwealths.

A beautiful city has grown up among the trees on the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. It has nothing to do with the immense exhibit palaces, but is a thing apart. The houses in this new city are of various styles of architecture. Some are palatial in size and appearance, while others look merely cozy and inviting. Never before have so many notable and historic buildings been constructed in one group. This new city might be called the City of the States, for the houses included in it are the state buildings at the fair.

The city is not compact, but somewhat straggling, as befits the picturesque of the view. Yet there is nothing suggestive of a Stringtown-on-the-Pike about this city, for the grounds surrounding each of the houses are beautified with gardens typical of the state represented.

All the states are to be represented at the World's Fair. This means a great deal, a shining triumph for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and furnishes another illustration of the fact that this Exposition's completeness is the marvel of the age.

Fifty-one states, territories and possessions of the United States have taken the steps necessary to participate in the World's Fair on an important scale. But two states were still outside the fold at the last report, and in each of these was a well defined movement in favor of being represented at the fair with buildings and exhibits. New Hampshire, the old home state, and Delaware are the states referred to. In New Hampshire a fund for participation is being raised privately by patriotic citizens, so that in the event of legislative inaction this commonwealth may be represented.

The states and territories are expending over $7,000,000 in their efforts to show off to best advantage at the Exposition. This is a million and a third more than was expended at the Chicago exposition by the states. In addition to this, large cities in many states will have municipal exhibits, the funds for which are not included in these figures. The municipal exhibit idea is entirely novel. From a number of the states there will be prominent county exhibits provided by special appropriation of county funds.

This City of the States presents a picture of surpassing beauty. Nature has done much to aid in the creation of the picture. Never before has any exposition been able to grant such advantageous sites for state buildings. The buildings are situated on a plateau about seventy-five feet higher than the level ground to the north upon which stand the main exhibit palaces. There are hills and ravines here and there, enabling the landscapists to lay out a most delightful pattern of roads and terraces and lawns.

The smallest of the state buildings is that of Arizona, which stands near the southeastern entrance to the grounds. One of the largest is that of Missouri, from the dome of which it is said that perhaps the very finest view of the Exposition may be enjoyed. This building is a palace in the Italian renaissance architecture, built at a cost of $105,000. Near by is the reproduction of the Cabildo at New Orleans, in which the Louisiana Purchase transfer ceremonies took place—Louisiana's state building. Ohio has a clubhouse of highly ornate design. In the architecture of the French renaissance, Illinois is prominent with a most pretentious structure, with wide verandas and a commanding cupola.

A description of each of the state buildings, with any detail, would more than fill a newspaper page. It is only possible here to hint at some of the interesting structures. California, for instance, has reproduced in exact size the famous old La Rabida Mission. Connecticut presents a replica of the Sigourney residence at Hartford, home of the poetess Lydia Huntley Sigourney in her time. This building is said to be the finest specimen of purely colonial architecture now standing. The New Kentucky Home, from the Blue Grass State, is a handsome clubhouse that would make some of the mansions along Fifth avenue, New York city, look insignificant. Beauvoir, the quaint old house which Jefferson Davis owned and occupied for many years, is reproduced by Mississippi. Its wide verandas or galleries give it a most inviting appearance. Washington's headquarters at Morris-town, N. J., are reproduced by New Jersey. Virginia contributes Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

The state of Washington contributes a structure of unique design. It is called the Wigwam, five stories high, built of wood from Washington forests. The building is octagonal, with gigantic diagonal timbers rising from the ground and meeting in an apex ninety feet in the air, above which is built an observatory, from which a splendid view of the Exposition may be had. An elevator will carry visitors to the observatory.

New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Arkansas, Colorado, West Virginia, Indiana, Wisconsin, Texas and many other states are represented by buildings which cannot fail to arouse admiration. The Texas building is in the shape of a five pointed star, an appropriate idea for the big Lone Star State. Iowa has a magnificent mansion, with classic porticoes and a central tower containing an observatory chamber. Kansas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma each uphold the growing reputation of the southwest for enterprise and fertility of resources.

COWS TRAINED FOR THE TEST

Jerseys at the World's Fair Are Expected to Show That They Are Superior to All Other Breeds.

The herd of Jersey cows assembled at the World's Fair at St. Louis to represent the Jersey breed in the universal dairy test has been inspected and has been pronounced in perfect condition and ready to start upon their six months' grind on a day's notice.

W. R. Spann of the Barr Oak Jersey farm, Dallas, Tex., was the inspector, and he was thorough in his work. He passed a week on the Exposition grounds, and much of the time was spent in and around the Jersey cattle barn, and the condition of each individual of the herd of forty cows was definitely ascertained.

Never was more intelligent and careful treatment lavished on animals. No athlete was ever better trained for a contest requiring the development of speed, skill and endurance than has been this herd of Jerseys. When it is known that this herd is to compete with selected herds of Holsteins, Short-horns, Brown Swisses and Devons, and the herd making the best score for the production of butter, milk and cheese is to establish the standing of the various breeds, the importance of the cows being in perfect condition may be understood.

For a solid year the Jerseys have been in constant training. Twenty-five cows will participate in the contest. Cows were selected from the best herds in the United States.

Dr. J. J. Richardson, president of the American Jersey Cattle Club, under whose auspices this entry is made, toured Europe and visited the famed Isle of Jersey, where the breed originated. He was seeking the best cows, but returned satisfied that Europe could show no cows that were better than those bred in America.

Though only twenty-five cows will participate in the test, forty cows were selected. They were assembled at Jerseyville, Ill., a year ago. This is near St. Louis, and the cattle have become acclimated. Last December they were removed to St. Louis. The cows are the property of individual members of the club and are loaned for the term of the test. C. T. Graves, a breeder at Maitland, Mo., was selected as the superintendent to have charge of the cattle, and he has been highly complimented by Dr. Richardson and Inspector Spann for the wonderfully fine condition in which he has placed the herd.

A series of model dairy barns have been built for the breeds competing in the test. The barns are octagonal in form, and are so arranged that the cows are in the center and a wide promenade permits visitors to pass around and view the cows as they stand in their stalls.

The milking and feeding are to be done in plain view of the public, and representatives of the various herds will at all times have access to all the barns to see that no sharp practices are indulged in.

The test not only consists in showing the amount of butter, milk and cheese produced, but the cost of production is taken into consideration. Every ounce of food given each cow is weighed and carefully recorded. When the cows are milked, the milk is conveyed to a model creamery in the Agricultural building, where it is tested and made into butter and cheese and where all records are carefully kept.

The Jersey cattle participated in a similar test at Chicago during the Columbian Exposition and carried off first honors.

Superintendent Graves is sanguine over the result of the present test. He says that the Jerseys have always demonstrated their superiority over all other breeds when placed in competition, and this time they will show to better advantage than ever. Not only is the Jersey milk richer in butter fat than the milk of any other breed, says Mr. Graves, but it can be produced at a less cost. The Jersey cows are the smallest of the standard breeds, and he asserts that they consume less feed. They assimilate their food, and it is converted into milk and butter and is not used in building up and sustaining a large carcass.

"We are going to make all other breeds take to the woods after this test," said Mr. Graves. "A few days ago I was testing some of our Jersey milk, and my hands were all sticky and greasy from the enormous amount of butter fat the milk contained. Mr. Von Heyne, who is in charge of the Holsteins, sent over a quantity of his milk for me to test. Of course, from a commercial standpoint, there was no comparison between the milk, but it was a pleasure to test his milk, for when I got through there was no grease on my hands. After this I will have a bucket of Holstein milk around handy to wash my hands in after testing our own rich Jersey milk." The test begins May 16 and continues 120 days.

Unique California Map.

A unique exhibit at the World's Fair was prepared by the agricultural department of the University of California. It is a large map, so colored as to show the character of the various soils of the state. It gives a clear idea of the situations and the extent of the arable and unutilized sections. In the localities that cannot be cultivated are shown the Sierras, the lava beds and the desert. The map indicates the location of the cultivable portions of the mountains and Mohave plateau and shows the nature of the foothills and valleys of that wonderful state.

WORLD'S FAIR HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS.

St. Louis Hoteliers Prepared to Handle Vast Throngs—Prices Not to Be Increased—Hotel Inside of the Exposition Grounds With a Capacity For 6,000 Guests.

Ample hotel accommodations have been provided for the World's Fair visitors at St. Louis both within and outside of the Exposition grounds.

The Exposition management has organized a free information service. A pamphlet has been issued for gratuitous circulation explaining many of the conveniences that have been provided. A list of all the hotels, with rates, is contained in this pamphlet. The entire city has been canvassed, and many thousands of private householders have arranged to receive visitors. These houses are in every section of the city, and the rates at which guests will be received is a matter of record on the books of the bureau.

The Inside Inn, a hotel on the Exposition grounds, has a capacity for 6,000 guests. The Exposition management has control of the rates, which have been fixed at from $1.50 to $3.50 per day, European plan, including admission to the grounds. On the American plan the rates range from $3 to $5 per day. The hotel is 400 by 800 feet and is three stories high.

There are more than 150 established hotels in St. Louis, and a signed agreement has been made between many of their managers with the Exposition officials that rates shall not be raised during the Exposition period. Many new hotels have been built on sites adjacent to the Exposition grounds, and the published fixed rates warrant the assertion that no one need pay exorbitant rates for accommodations either at hotels or private houses.

Among the new hotels may be mentioned the Hotel Napoleon Bonaparte, which stands at Clayton avenue and Skinker road, overlooking the Exposition grounds. This hotel will accommodate 5,000 persons. The rates, European plan, are from $1 to $5 per day. The Grand View hotel, south of the Exposition, on Oakland avenue, has a capacity for 5,000 guests, and the rates are $1 to $1.50 per day, European, and $2 to $2.50 per day on the American plan. The Keelworth, on West Park boulevard and Billon avenue, has a capacity of 1,500 guests, with a rate of $1.50 per day.

The above mentioned are a few of the new hotels that have been erected near the Exposition grounds for the accommodation of World's Fair visitors. All told there are about two score. All are within easy walking distance, and all are situated on high ground, with comprehensive views of the grounds. All of the structures are well built, and in some of them the most luxurious quarters are obtainable. The rates are established and will not be increased during the Exposition.

NEW MUSIC FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Three Compositions by Famous People. Band Tournament.

Musical people and all who appreciate good music may thank the World's Fair for three notable compositions, written upon the invitation of the Exposition management. These are the "Hymn of the West," by the most distinguished living American poet, Edmund Clarence Stedman, the music for which was written by Professor John K. Paine, who is at the head of the music department of Harvard university; "Louisiana," a march by Frank Vanderstucken, leader of the Cincinnati Orchestra; a waltz, "Along the Plaza," by Henry K. Hadley of New York, who has won his laurels long before this as writer of operatic and other musical compositions. This music will be heard publicly for the first time upon the opening of the Exposition on Saturday, April 30, and frequently thereafter in the musical programmes of the greatest of world's fairs. These are the only official compositions.

Thirty thousand dollars will be given in prizes for the best bands at a tournament to be held during the Exposition. All through the World's Fair the musical feature will be prominent. The most famous bands of the world are under contract to participate during considerable periods. Among these are Le Garde Republicaine band of France, the Royal Grenadier band of England, the American National band, Sousa's band and others.

In Memoriam

Marching With Grant

FORTY years ago the year of bloody battles opened with campaigns in Virginia and Georgia. Grant had recently been given the rank of lieutenant general, with command of all the Federal forces. He personally conducted the Army of the Potomac in the march against Richmond through the region west of the Rappahannock river known as the Wilderness. In the month of May, 1864, over a hundred actions were fought all over the theater of war, which resulted in loss of life. May 5 was a day of battles.

The battle opened in the Wilderness on May 5 with one of the most remarkable struggles known to the annals of war. Writing of the battle ground, General Badeau says, "One tangled mass of stunted evergreen, dwarf chestnut, oak and hazel, with an undergrowth of low bristling shrubs, making the forest almost impenetrable." And of the battle, "A wrestle as blind as at midnight; a gloom that made maneuvers impracticable; a jungle where regiments stumbled on each other and on the enemy by turns, firing sometimes into their own ranks and guided often only by the crackling of the bushes or the cheers and cries that arose from the depths around." The fighting of May 5 in the Wilderness, and, in fact, both days of the battle, was the al G. K. Warren and the Sixth under General John Sedgwick. Early on the 6th General James S. Wadsworth, commanding a division of the Fifth corps, was ordered to face his command by the flank southward and charge through to the plank road until he joined on the right of Hancock's line. The movement was a forlorn hope. Distances were unknown to the Federal leaders, for the ground had always been inside the Confederate lines and had not been reconnoitered, and the officers were without maps or guides.

General Wadsworth took his men through the unknown wilderness without falling into ambush, but in the first attack after he formed his line at the plank road he was shot from the saddle just as his horse leaped the Confederate breastworks.

From the Wilderness battlefield Grant marched the whole army forward around Lee's flank to Spottsylvania Court House, where the fighting was resumed on May 8. The Sixth corps, under General John Sedgwick, reached the field late on the 8th and early the 9th took up position for battle. One battery of the corps was located in full view of the Confederate sharpshooters, and every officer who showed himself as a target there was hit.

Marching With Lee

IT really matters but little to history just how and by whom the bloody battle of the Wilderness was opened forty years ago, but there was one incident of that hour which shows how the wisest experts may gravely miscalculate in war. The Army of the Potomac crossed the Rappahannock river on the 4th of May, 1864, and began its march through the wilderness region by roads leading toward Richmond. Battle was not looked for by the Federal leaders before reaching the North Anna river, many miles distant.

But Robert E. Lee saw his opportunity to hold up the Federal march in the wilderness and deployed his army across the roads to dispute the passes toward Richmond. The first armed clash of the field took place on the Orange turnpike between the Confederates of Ewell's corps and the Federals under General G. K. Warren. Early in the day the advance Confederate brigade, led by General John M. Jones, drove in the Federal vedettes who were guarding Warren's flank from surprise and saw the great array of enemies marching confidently toward Richmond.

Jones reported to his chief what he had discovered and drew his brigade back two miles to the intersection of a crossroad with a turnpike, along easy triumph that would end in driving the Federals across the Rappahannock river again before night. Longstreet rode at the head of a column which he had formed to attack Hancock, but was disabled by a painful wound before the ball was fairly opened. Almost at the same instant General Micah Jenkins, who was by the side of Longstreet, was killed.

Six days after the deadlock in the wilderness there was another at Spottsylvania Court House, where Lee again blocked the way to Richmond. At Spottsylvania the troops of Hancock and Ewell were opposed in a struggle for the possession of the key to the field, a sharp, elevated position, fitly called the "Bloody Angle." General Edward Johnson's Confederate division held the front line of the angle when Hancock sprung the attack during a fog early on the morning of May 12 and was captured almost entire with its commander. Other troops rallied to defend the angle, among them the brigade of General Julius Daniel, who was killed in one of the strangest encounters on record. The troops fought all day at arm's length over a single breastwork. The recital of incidents of that fight makes one marvel that warfare could be so terrible.

Marching With Sherman

SHERMAN was "marching through Georgia" months before he started on the famous trip from Atlanta to the sea which is celebrated in the popular war song. This time forty years ago the army was on the northern slope of Pine mountain tolling to break through the passes held by General Joseph E. Johnston's Confederates and covered by his guns. Beyond Pine mountain lay bold Kenesaw, through which the railway passed leading to Atlanta.

The actions fought during this stage of Sherman's march were less sanguinary than those taking place in the same period on eastern battlefields, but the National cemetery at Marietta, on the southern slopes of Kenesaw, holds the ashes of 10,000 Federal soldiers who fell from the bullets or disease. Kenesaw and the lesser mountains around it held Sherman's army a month. On the 27th of June the heights were stormed, with a loss of 2,500 Federal assailants.

The operations in front of Kenesaw mountain were attended with one of those peculiar war tragedies which carry regret to faces as well as sorrow to friends. After Sherman had pushed his right and left wings respectively beyond the line of Pine mountain it became a question with the Confederate commander whether he should heaviest, recalling the stone wall at Fredericksburg. Newton's division led Thomas' attack, and that of Jeff C. Davis followed, making a column seven lines deep.

The two divisions of Newton and Davis were exposed to the fire of two Confederate divisions of infantry and thirty-two field guns for two hours. In places the assailants reached the parapets, where many fell, and some even crossed the trenches and were killed there. The Confederates stated that they counted a thousand dead boys in blue in the line closest to their works. This assault was a bloody failure, but that was not because of want of valor in the troops. Finding themselves in danger of annihilation, yet scorning retreat, they clung to the slight ridges under the enemy's guns. The brigade of General Daniel McCook built a little parapet within seventy-five feet of the works. General McCook was mortally wounded, and his second in command, Colonel O. F. Harmon, also fell. McCook seemed to have a premonition of the carnage to come, for before the assault he recited to his men the lines from "Horatius at the Bridge" beginning:

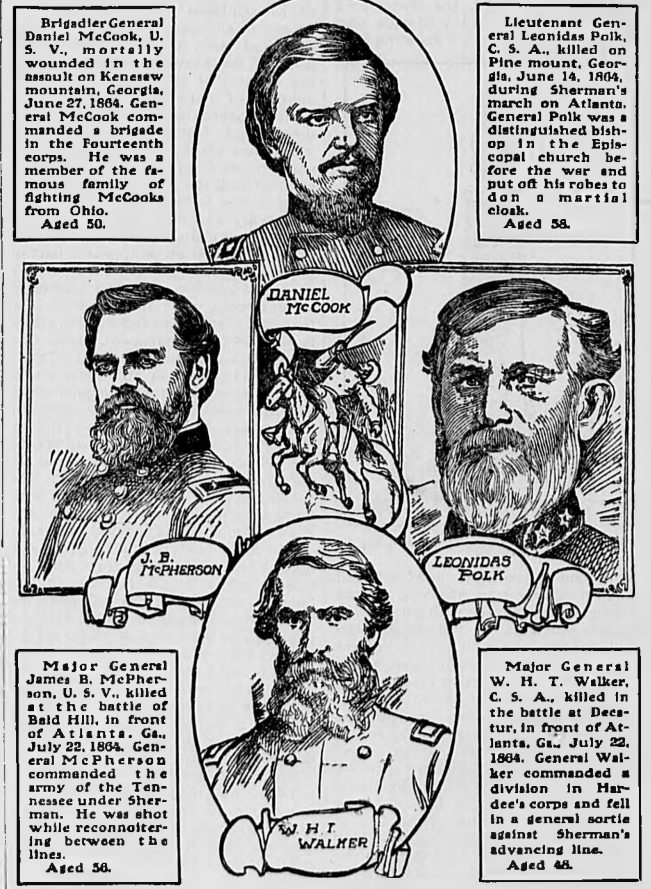

Oh, how can men die better than facing fearful odds
For the glory of their country and the altars of their gods!

heaviest on the Federal left wing, where the Second corps, led by General Winfield Scott Hancock, fought the Confederate right, led by Robert E. Lee in person. General Hancock attempted to transfer his marching columns from the Catharpin road to the Orange plank road, a couple of miles distant and leading in the same direction. While crossing over the troops were attacked on the march by Confederates and compelled to plunge into the wilderness to find the enemy. The chief leader who fell there was General Alexander Hays, commanding a brigade. This devoted officer had often ridden in open battle, even on the bare slopes of Gettysburg, with his staff and flag behind him, the admiration of two armies. He fell at last in a tangled wilderness where not even a single regiment could note his action and derive inspiration from his courage and martial enthusiasm.

May 6 found Hancock still battling along the plank road. He had carried his right flank to the road, but every step of the march was opposed by the Confederates, and the Federals could only make headway by penetrating the thicket along the route. During the night the Confederates had built breastworks of logs. The Federal right wing was struggling under the same difficulties in advancing along the Orange turnpike, a couple of miles north of the plank road. This wing was composed of the Fifth corps under General

General Sedgwick was warned of the danger of going near the exposed battery, but in less than an hour after the warning the general and the officer who gave the warning walked out to the battery to get a better alignment for the troops. Seeing the men whom they passed dodging bullets aimed at the battery, Sedgwick exclaimed: "What men! Dodging this way for single bullets? What 'll you do when they open fire along the whole line? I'm ashamed of you. They can't hit an elephant at this distance."

A few seconds after reaching the battery the general was struck by a bullet under the left eye, and he fell against his chief of staff, General S. T. McMahon, carrying him to the ground with him. Death was almost instantaneous. The news spread quickly among the troops, and the whole corps was soon mourning the fall of Uncle John Sedgwick, who was loved by the men for his kindly and genial character.

On May 10 two daring assaults were made on Lee's intrenchments at Spottsylvania, and the troops led by General Warren and the gallant Colonel Emory Upton crossed the parapets under a galling fire, only to be driven back with terrible slaughter. General J. C. Rice, who led Warren's column with his brigade, was mortally wounded. General Rice's death made the fourth in four days of fighting among the Federal leaders.

which Warren hoped to pass. Warren attacked Jones with a whole division and threw the Confederate brigade into confusion, its commander falling in the encounter. Jones' brigade belonged to the division of General Edward Johnson, who was at hand with the companion brigade, led by General George H. Steuart, the noted Maryland Confederate. Johnson re-established his line and moved forward, completely checking Warren's march for that day.

When news of Warren's experience on the turnpike reached General Meade, the commander of the Army of the Potomac, he exclaimed, "The Confederates have left a division here to fool us, while they concentrate and prepare a position on the North Anna!" Warren's whole corps, supported by Sedgwick's Sixth corps, was not able to oust the stubborn "division" from its ground on the turnpike, for not simply a division, but a corps, was planted there, in touch with the remainder of Lee's army.

While Warren and Ewell fought for the right of way—the Orange turnpike—the Federals under General Hancock and the Confederates under General Longstreet and General A. P. Hill were locked in bloody encounter on the Orange plank road, at the southern edge of the great wilderness region. Longstreet's corps was the last of the three corps in Lee's army to reach the battlefield, and the troops entered the fight with enthusiasm, looking for an ridges was seen by his comrades to rise deliberately so that the upper half of his person was above the parapet, an easy target for the enemy, and from this position take deliberate aim, fire and crouch down to reload. He repeated this scores and scores of times. Yankee bullets whizzed around him, but he seemed to bear a charmed life. Often he would remain on his feet many minutes, drawing head and then recovering to wait for better aim.

Finally, late in the day, the frenzied fireman was seen to draw upon some object, an officer probably, at a distance back from the Federal trenches. The chance didn't suit, and he recovered and stood bolt upright, watching for a better target. When at length one appeared, and as he was about to pull, a Federal bullet pierced his heart, stretching him dead in his tracks.

While Lee's infantry waged fierce battle at Spottsylvania his cavalry corps under General J. E. B. Stuart rode on toward Richmond to guard the passes to the Confederate capital from a threatened attack by General Phil Sheridan's immense cavalcade of troops. Sheridan had cut loose from the main Federal army engaged at Spottsylvania and expected to strike Richmond before Lee's slow marching battalions could come to its defense. His columns were intercepted by Stuart before reaching the city, and in a stirring encounter at a place known as Yellow Tavern Stuart was mortally wounded.

attempt to hold on to Pine mountain. On the morning of June 14 General Johnston, accompanied by General Hardee and General Polk, rode out to the front to examine the post and determine upon its fate.

After consulting their examination and deciding upon the immediate withdrawal of the troops there the party was fired upon by a Federal battery of Parrott guns stationed about a quarter of a mile distant. At the third shot a shell struck General Polk in the chest and passed through his body from left to right, killing him instantly.

General Polk received a military education and graduated at West Point. Early in life he left the service for the pulpit in the Protestant Episcopal church and at the outbreak of the war had reached the rank of bishop. Believing that his military knowledge would best serve the south in that crisis, he laid aside his robes and entered the army, where his distinguished services won for him advancement to the rank of lieutenant general.

In order to open the passes of Kenesaw mountain to his troops Sherman resorted to the doubtful expedient of direct assault upon the intrenched and well manned lines of his opponent. The attack was made June 27 and, as in Pickett's famous charge at Gettysburg, was preceded by a heavy cannonade. The whole long line of battle advanced, but in front of the Army of the Cumberland, led by the veteran Thomas, the fighting was the

A couple of weeks after the storming of Kenesaw, which Johnston finally abandoned to Sherman, this leader was supplanted in the command by General J. B. Hood, a hero of the battlefields of the Potomac. Hood announced his coming by a series of sorties against the foe then closing in upon Atlanta. When Sherman heard that Hood was in command of the Confederates he warned his generals that hard fighting lay ahead. He knew Hood at West Point and in the old army and declared that in gauging he "always played the bluff."

In a brilliant sortie led by Hood on the 22d of July, which is known as the battle of Bald Hill, General J. B. McPherson, commander of the Army of the Tennessee under Sherman, was killed. During the fight which was going against his line he rode out with a single aid to order a brigade to fill a gap which if left open would be fatal. After making the disposition he started to return to the scene of danger, but by some strange error rode through the gap into unoccupied ground. There he encountered at close range some Tennessee stragglers, one of whom shot him from the saddle. When the soldier learned who his victim was he regretted that he had not spared his life. The same day the Confederate General W. H. T. Walker, commanding one of Hood's divisions, was instantly killed in a charge against McPherson's left wing.
